Town's Growth Brings Another Problem: Nobody's Answering "Help Wanted" Ads

Princeton retail and food businesses hard pressed to find people to fill job vacancies have had a temporary reprieve in the form of students returning home from college.

But employment problems in this town, which manifest themselves as "Help Wanted" signs in shop windows, remain, and many employers are worried about how they will fill the positions when the students go back to college again in the fall.

"There is a real crisis building among businesses in town and out of town," says Everett Garretson of Clayton's on Palmer Square. Clayton's took the unusual step of including a notice about its need for a bookkeeper, an office worker and sales people in the May 1 billing to its charge customers.

"We thought some of them might know someone, or have a daughter who wants to work," Mr. Garretson explained. "Right now we are blessed with college girls who will be with us for the summer, but after they return, we'll have to start all over."

Seminary student wives, very often teachers by training, were a dependable source of counter help for Clayton's at a time when there were very few openings in teaching, Mr. Garretson says. That situation no longer pertains. Moreover, married women with children at school, another good source, are more mobile and can "look around" for jobs, he thinks.

Mr. Garretson cites the lack of middle income housing in Princeton, and particularly the lack of parking, as playing prominent roles in the employment crisis that is building. And although he and other employers say they have revalued their salary range to make salaries more competitive with what is offered on Route 1, he thinks Route 1 office complexes are already "soaking up" people, and that it is just a matter of time before the two new major shopping centers soak up a couple of thousand more.

Other retailers are equally hard pressed. "The problem is there are not enough people for the jobs," says Madeline Kronski of Epstein's in the Princeton Shopping Center, a view that is echoed by many business owners. "There is no employment problem; there's no one to employ," jokes a salesman at Huli's Shoes.

"Try Us. You'll Like Us." reads the boldface type in a three-quarter page ad placed in this paper and others by Woolworth's, seeking full and part time employees for its Quaker Bridge Mall location as well as the Nassau Street store. "It's worse than desperate," is the way Donna Gaston of Woolworth's describes the difficulty the store has had in attracting and keeping people for merchandizing and maintenance.

The plight of the two Woolworth stores attracted the at-

Borough Council Upholds Joan Hill's Suspension, Sigmund Rebuts Charges on Handling of Hearing

The vote by Borough Council to affirm Civil Rights Commissioner Joan Hill's 30-day suspension-without-pay has led to a series of reactions in the community. The decision was not made public until Thursday morning, May 28 — two days after the Council vote — in order that Mayor Barbara Sigmund might personally inform Ms. Hill.

The Rev. Michael C.R. Nabors, pastor of First Baptist Church, fired off a letter to the Mayor denouncing Council's affirmation of the penalty imposed by Borough Administrator Mark Gordon. Mr. Gordon, after an administrative hearing, found that Ms. Hill had behaved in a manner unbecoming a public employee.

"I view this decision as a sign of discrimination against blacks living in the town of Princeton," wrote Mr. Nabors, who called for an "all-out war against racism." (For complete text, see "Mailbox," page 14.)

Council voted 5-1 to uphold Mr. Gordon's penalty. The lone nay vote was cast by Councilwoman Mildred Trotman, who explained that she was not condoning or encouraging abusive language or inappropriate behavior at any time, but felt the 30-day loss of pay was too severe a penalty.

Mr. Gordon also found that Ms. Hill had issued threats against Arresting Officer Anthony Gaylord, of the Princeton Township Police, based upon information that she obtained as director of the Civil Rights Commission. Ms. Trotman differed, believing that Ms. Hill mentioned her connection with the commission only to imply that her complaints were so strong that the officer would not have a chance in a civil rights proceeding — and that the only way justice could be done would be through such a proceeding.

The councilwoman also felt that Ms. Hill was provoked during the hour-and-a-half processing at Township Police Headquarters following her ar-

Borough and University Expected to Compromise On Plans for Dinky Area

"There is peace in our time, and without an umbrella," quipped Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund as she announced that the Borough and Princeton University are well on their way towards a compromise of their disagreement over traffic circulation patterns at the Dinky station.

The mayor and several members of Council met Monday afternoon with representatives of the University and the Borough's Traffic and Transportation Committee. The hour-and-a-half discussion at Borough Hall concluded with several suggestions for alterations in the University's traffic plan. This plan would have required cars heading south on University Place to enter the new parking lot in order to drop off or pick up passengers.

rest on August 27, 1986, for driving while intoxicated.

"Being brought in, handcuffed behind her back, along with two policemen, one who knew her well, is unnecessary," said Ms. Trotman. "She was refused permission to go to the bathroom at least two times, and refused permission to have a cigarette. If either of these is illegal, it should have been explained to her."

Ms. Trotman, who referred to the fact that Ms. Hill and Sgt. Gaylord had known each other since their days at Princeton High School, also said that she felt that some of Ms. Hill's behavior — viewed as inappropriate by Mr. Gordon and others — was a result of her knowing the sergeant for many years.

Ms. Hill was issued the suspension after an administrative hearing into charges by Township Judge Sydney Souter that she had abused her position as the director of the Joint Civil Rights Commission. Judge Souter found Ms. Hill guilty in December of driving while intoxicated. The conviction is now in its second appeal.

The judge based his charges on a videotape taken during Ms. Hill's processing, a tape that has since served as the major piece of evidence in Mr. Gordon's hearing and the appeal to Council that followed.

Ms. Hill's attorney, Napoleon Williams of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund in New York, reacted sharply last week to the Council vote. He said Ms. Hill had never been given the opportunity to know the specific charges in advance and did not have a fair hearing. "We wanted Sergeant Gaylord, and his records, subpoenaed," said the attorney. "But this was denied by Mr. Gordon."

"There is nothing on record that she in fact had misused her office, or used her office to threaten," he said, and accused Council of acting politically, not judicially.

In response to Mr. Williams' comments quoted last week in the press, Mayor Sigmund, on Tuesday, wrote a lengthy letter refuting a number of the lawyer's points. "We ourselves objected to political pressure to prejudice Ms. Hill or to otherwise impair the work of the Princeton Civil Rights Commission and its program," she stated. "We believe we have granted Ms. Hill every possible consideration and the rights of due process to guarantee that a fair, non-political judgment could be made."

She also wrote that Mayor and Council stand prepared to respond to challenges to its decisions. "But, by definition, it is impossible to respond to generalized and non-specific allegations of 'discrimination.'" The letter was also signed by Council President Marvin Reed. (For complete text, see "Mailbox," page 14.)

The Mayor also issued a statement on the Hill case, in which she announced she will recommend to Borough Council at its Thursday, June 4, meeting, that the 30-day suspension commence as soon as possible, "specifically, Saturday, June 6." She gave as her reason "a wish to minimize the adverse impact which this matter may have on carrying out an effective civil rights program in the Princeton community."

It is unclear at this point whether Ms. Hill will appeal Council's decision, and, if so, what effect this would have on the suspension.

The mayor also released, for the first time, the full 14-page decision reached by Mr. Gordon at the conclusion of his administrative hearing.

The document disclosed that four witnesses appeared in Ms. Hill's behalf: the Rev. Wallace M. Alston Jr., senior pastor of Nassau Presbyterian Church; the Rev. John Crocker, rector of Trinity Church; the Rev. Michael C.R. Nabors, pastor of First Baptist Church, and Martha B. Hartmann, member of the Joint Civil Rights Commission.

Mr. Gordon wrote that Ms. Hill, as director of the Civil Rights Commission, "must project an unfailing image of personal integrity and dignity." He found that, at various points in the videotape, she was "aggressive," "hostile," "argumentative," and "somewhat incredulous and surprised" at being taken into custody.

Ms. Hill frequently referred to a "vendetta" Sgt. Gaylord held against her. In this regard, Mr. Gordon wrote, "It is her contention that Sgt. Gaylord has a vendetta against her because she presented the civil rights complaint of someone to the chief of police, who thereupon suspended Sgt. Gaylord. There were also two other complaints against the officer which Ms. Hill processed."

In his conclusion, Mr. Gordon said Ms. Hill engaged in completely inappropriate behavior, and that "such conduct and speech by the director of the Joint Commission on Civil Rights toward another public employee cannot be justified under any circumstance." He added that, if she had sensed a vendetta, there were more appropriate channels for redress.

Air Balloon Rally Set For Forrestal Center

Princeton Forrestal Village will hold a hot air balloon rally, with at least 25 balloons, at the Princeton University Airstrip on Sunday afternoon, June 14. A crafts fair and food stands are also planned.

Each balloon will be sponsored by a private donor, who will contribute at least $1,000 to the Plainsboro Cultural Fund.

The balloons will be inflated at the airstrip beginning at 3 p.m. The featured event will be a "hare and hound" race, in which a leader balloon takes off at approximately 5:30 p.m., 15 minutes ahead of the others. The first balloon finds an open field, lands, and places a large "X" on the field. Each of the following balloons must find the spot and drop a numbered beanbag closest to the target.

The event is free.

Zoning Board Approval Granted For 65 Townhouses off Terhune

Michael Giardino's site plan for 65 townhouses with a caretaker's house and a new clubhouse and swimming pool for the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club was approved by the Zoning Board last week.

Approval, which was unanimous, was granted with a long list of fairly minor conditions — but without the requirement that wetlands be delineated as a precondition to approval. Environmentalists, the planning director and the Township engineer had sought wetlands delineation as a precondition, pointing out that Township ordinances require a developer to delineate "critical areas" so that proposed improvements do not impinge on these areas.

But Mr. Giardino's attorney, Thomas Jamieson, stuck to his earlier insistence that his client would accept any and all requirements arising out of preparing the soil erosion and sedimentation control plan, which is required before a construction permit is granted. But he was adamant in his unwillingness to accept the preconditioned approval because in his view wetlands delineation per se is not required by ordinance. Mr. Jamieson was opposed to the Zoning Board "writing new rules" for his client, as he put it.

A compromise of sorts was suggested by Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser. If, in the process of preparing the soil erosion plan, the applicant's consultants find that certain proposed improvements need to be relocated to avoid wetlands, the engineer will be notified. Minor relocation, such as shifting the swimming pool or the parking lot (where the wet areas are believed to be), may be made with the engineer's approval. Any major relocation will require the applicant's returning to the zoning board, it was agreed.

Several Issues. Delineation of wetlands was one of several site plan issues that consumed, since March, three nights of testimony and public hearings in front of the Zoning Board before approval was granted. Normally these issues are reviewed by the Planning Board, which is the usual body to grant site plan and subdivision approval.

However, as contract purchaser of the 20-acre Italian-American Sportsmen's property, which lies in the office research (OR) zone, Mr. Giardino's father, M. David Giardino, had to have a bulk variance to build townhouses at the density proposed. When the purchase was announced in late 1985, neighbors prevailed upon Michael Giardino to build residences instead of office buildings, because residential use generates far less traffic.

TOPICS Of The Town

Present zoning allows residences in the OR zone, but at a minimum lot size of 1½ acres each. Mr. Giardino's original plan for 80 townhouse units — about four units an acre — was reduced to 65 units at the urging of the Planning Board's use variance review subcommittee. The Zoning Board approved the bulk variance for 65 townhouses, and according to state land use law, which permits "one stop shopping" for developers, that board, rather than the Planning Board, then acted on the site plan and subdivision request.

Mr. Giardino did not come in for an informal concept review, when site plan issues are sometimes resolved before the plan is fully engineered. In early March, the plan was shown to the Site Plan Review Advisory Board, which, although concerned with the adequacy of parking for Italian-American Sportsmen Club events, was supportive of the layout.

Old Trees vs. New Trees. During the three Zoning Board hearings, focus centered on wet soils and on an old stream bed, filled during rainy weather but dry otherwise. Mr. Giardino proposed to re-route the stream to accommodate the perimeter road serving the townhouses. There was also discussion of trees and the fact that the townhouse site will be largely stripped and regraded.

Planning Director Duggan Kimball acknowledged that Mr. Giardino's plan is a formal, geometric design in which the architecture itself is the focus. "This is a long way on the other side of the spectrum from our approach, which is to take what you have on the ground and make a plan conform to that, to the extent possible. This is a fundamental philosophy embodied in Township ordinances," Mr. Kimball told the Zoning Board.

"We want to work in a spirit of cooperation," he added. "We're not asking that the entire concept be thrown out. But we would ask that some efforts be made to work with the existing grade to preserve some semblance of what this site has been." He sought a compromise by which the developer would work with the engineer and members of the Planning Board's landscape subcommittee in plotting trees that could be saved.

But Mr. Giardino countered that these second-growth trees would be damaged by singling them out of a reforested area and would eventually die. Moreover, he said, their leaves are at 30- to 40-foot height, which would look out of place with the new young hardwoods he proposes to plant. Mr. Giardino proposes to plant more than 600 new trees in the court-yards and along the road and property edge.

Revision Rejected. There was also discussion of a "revised" plan, which would have moved one cluster of townhouses away from the controversial stream bed and ended part of the perimeter road in a turn-around. Mr. Giardino said he was willing to adopt this revision if the board made it a condition of approval. Mr. Kimball said the revised plan, which was generated by the use variance committee, "represents a significant step in the direction of the goals embodied in the site plan ordinance" and would preserve the integrity of the stream.

However, Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser said the revised plan was not the best from a traffic point of view, because it placed two driveways too close to the roadway. "Does this plan work?" he asked. "Yes. Does it work as well as the initial plan? I'd have to say 'no.'" The Zoning Board agreed with him, and did not make the revision to avoid the stream bed a condition of approval.

In fact, Zoning Board members, most of whom had walked the property, agreed with Mr. Giardino that the stream bed was more properly classified as a "drainage swale, not significant enough to be worthy of preservation." Zoning Board Chairman Donald N. Wilson added that the neighbors on Journey's End Lane would be worse off with the revised plan, because it would present a six-foot retaining wall to their view

Same Knife Sales Banned

The state Assembly passed legislation prohibiting the sale of large hunting, fishing, combat, ballistic and survival knives to people under the age of 18. Approved 71-0, it now goes to Gov. Thomas Kean for consideration.

Victim Compensation

A bill establishing a fund to compensate victims of accidents caused by drunken drivers has been approved by the Assembly. Financing would come from a five percent surcharge on fines imposed on persons convicted of this offense.

The Assembly voted 69-0 in favor of the measure, which now goes to the Senate for a vote.

Farmland Protection

A bill aimed at protecting farmland in towns such as Cranbury, Lawrence, West Windsor, and Plainsboro has been approved by the Assembly Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

Under the measure, municipalities would be able to preserve agricultural open space by transferring development rights of farm property to another parcel within or outside a municipality. Municipalities would be permitted to create sending zones, where development would be restricted, and receiving zones, where development would be directed.

Mandatory AIDS Testing

Assembly approval has gone to a measure that would require mandatory AIDS testing of certain convicted drug offenders and all convicted prostitutes. It will now go to the Senate for consideration.

The bill originally made it mandatory for anyone arrested for one of these offenses to be tested. But it was amended to include only those convicted.

and eliminate some of the buffer proposed by the developer.

In summary, just before the roll call, Mr. Wilson called the proposal "an excellent solution," which would make use of an area that had "lain fallow," move the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club away from a residential area, and provide a transition between residences and the office-research zone. He also pointed out that the lengthy review was an example of how hard everyone works on a complicated application.

"Maybe new trees are just as good as old trees," Mr. Wilson remarked.

PCH Hearing Continued At Planning Board Meeting

The Planning Board was scheduled to continue its review of Princeton Community Housing's Herrontown Green proposal this Wednesday.

The non-profit community housing organization seeks preliminary site plan approval for the entire 280-unit project and final approval for the first 58 lots. The project is to be built under an agreement with the Township, by which 140 units would be reserved for low- and moderate-income individuals. Because many of these units would be rental units, the Township would gain an extra 14-unit credit for its Mt. Laurel obligation.

Issues raised in the first site plan hearing on May 22 included recreation space for older children; on-site storm water detention if the off-site regional detention basin on the Arcaro site is not forthcoming; spillover guest parking; and traffic management in the Route 206-Cherry Valley Road area.

Members of the public had an opportunity to speak May 22, and Wednesday night's session was intended to give Planning Board members an opportunity to address the issues and formulate conditions that might be attached to the approval.

A report from the Planning Board attorney on whether or not the Planning Board has the authority to regulate the use of Arreton Road by construction vehicles in the course of building the Princeton Ridge development was also scheduled for this Wednesday, along with Benedict Yedlin's request for final approval of Section II of the Andrews-Foulet tract.

Full Agenda Thursday For Township Committee

Because of the primary election last Tuesday, Township Committee will hold its regular Monday night meeting this week on Thursday. Committee will meet in closed session from 7 to 8, and begin the public portion at 8 in the Valley Road building meeting room.

The agenda includes a public hearing on an ordinance requiring homeowners to repair leaky or damaged private sewer laterals at their own expense, should the major trunk and collector system rehabilitation not

Decision Postponed on S-92 Alignment

New Jersey Transportation Commissioner Hazel F. Gluck has announced that the selection of a preferred alternative for the proposed Route 92 project in Mercer, Middlesex and Somerset counties has been delayed until fall 1987.

The alternative selection, which was anticipated this spring, has been delayed by the need to address the more than 200 public and agency comments placed in the Route 92 hearing record earlier this year. The Department must respond to each of these in the Final Environmental Impact Statement submitted to the Federal Highway Administration for approval.

The three options that are under consideration for this project, which would provide a new 13-mile roadway from Route 206 north of Princeton to Route 33 east of Hightstown, are the southerly alignment (Alternative I), the northerly alignment (Alternative IV) and the no-build alternative.

Following selection of a preferred alignment this fall, the Department expects to have a Final Environmental Impact Statement approved by the Federal Highway Administration by spring 1989. If one of the build alternatives is approved, the Department will begin the final design engineering and right of way acquisition processes necessary prior to construction.

The Department will continue to advance the design engineering for the Hightstown bypass portion of the Route 92 project to the extent allowed under federal guidelines while pursuing an approved Final Environmental Impact Statement. The Hightstown bypass would run from Route 33 near Exit 8 of the New Jersey Turnpike to Route 571 in the vicinity of the Route 571/535 intersection in East Windsor Township.

If the Transportation Trust Fund is renewed, right of way acquisition for the project could begin as early as 1990. If the Trust Fund is not renewed, each segment of the project will be programmed as funding allows.

section of town," agreed Capt. Thomas Michaud. "Certain aspects are very similar: point of entry, what was taken, the time of day of entry."

"It is not unusual," Capt. Michaud continued, "to have a wave of entries by one person or a small group. Right now, we are experiencing one of those patterns."

A Maple Street home was entered between noon Saturday and 11:30 in the evening and a VCR and video camera worth a combined $2,000 were stolen from a first-floor den. Police say they do not know which of several doors that were left unlocked was used to enter the house.

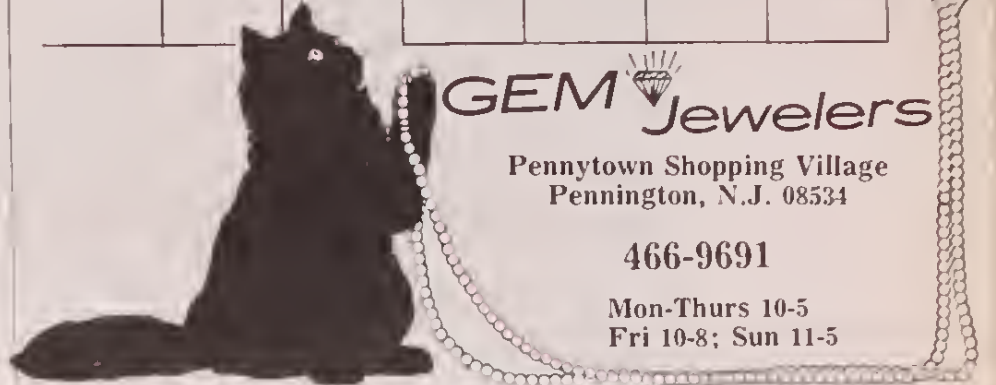

A Moran home was entered overnight during the weekend by way of an unlocked cellar door. The intruder, police said, then went up the cellar steps, entered, and ransacked several prove sufficiently effective in reducing water inflow throughout the system. The ordinance allows a homeowner to make the repairs with a private contractor or to contract the job with the Sewer Operating Committee. Repayment would be allowed over a 10-year time period.

Two ordinances will be introduced on Thursday. One would amend the office-research zone along Bunn Drive by changing the boundary line between the more restrictive OR 1 zone on the environmentally sensitive ridge and the OR 2 zone closer to Harrison Street. The change is a further modification of changes made last summer and leaves the Church & Dwight and Peterson's Guides property within the less restrictive OR 2 zone.

The second ordinance to be introduced would rezone the University's Butler tract as E-1, for educational and multi-family uses. The area is R-5, residential half-acre minimum lot size, except for a small area zoned R-H, residential high density, under the Township's affordable housing ordinance.

The University proposes to build up to 60 additional units of graduate student housing on the Butler tract. Forty-two of these units would be reserved as low-income housing to count toward the Township's total Mt. Laurel obligation, should graduate student housing be allowed by the Council on Affordable Housing. In addition, the University and the Township have agreed in principle that the University will sell six acres on West Drive to the Township for additional Mt. Laurel housing.

In its work session, Committee will review a revised proposal by Friends of Princeton Open Space to acquire the remaining land and a house on the Mountain Lakes tract. Committee has also scheduled discussion of the Township letter, for which funds were set aside in the 1986 budget.

The meeting will begin with the presentation of volunteer service pins. Committee has been systematically presenting these Township-designed lapel pins to volunteers who serve on its various boards, taking one or two boards at a time.

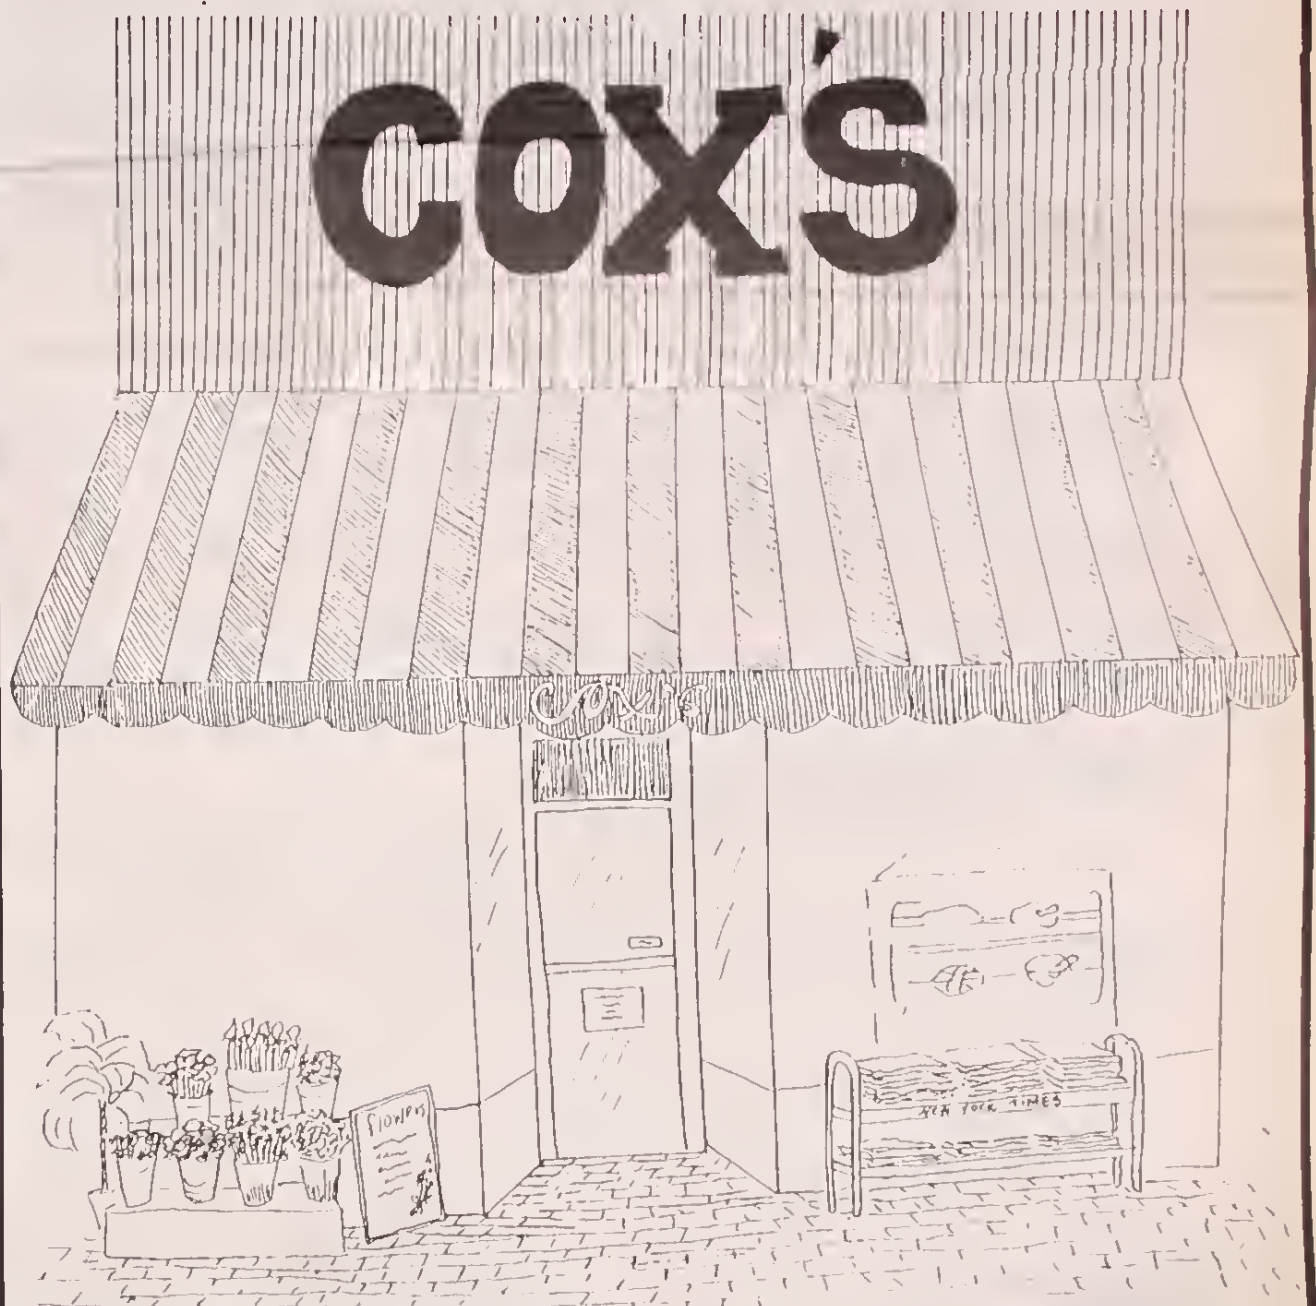

Police See a Pattern In Borough Break-Ins

The burglarizing of homes in the Borough continued last week, and police here feel there is a pattern to the rash of break-ins.

drawers. Before exiting through a kitchen door, he took a jewelry box from a bedroom and an unknown amount of change from a jar in the living room. Total value of the items was listed at $545.

Between 12:30 and 6 Friday morning a home on Jefferson Road was entered through an unlocked rear door leading to the kitchen. Taken were a stereo cassette, portable computer, wedding band, silver-plated cups and a candle holder worth $1,226.

The residents were home at the time, "which is a typical pattern recently," Capt. Michaud observed.

An outside stairway was used last week to reach an unlocked second-floor window of a John Street home. Missing are a color television set and a VCR, the value of which, police believe, exceeds $500. The culprit exited through a kitchen door.

Report of the theft was made by the owner of the property. Police said the victim is living at the address temporarily.

A cellar door again was used to gain access to a Moore Street home around 10:30 Thursday evening. Once inside, the intruder forced open an interior door at the top of the cellar steps.

The husband and wife occupants, who were on the second floor at the time, heard a noise but thought it was a family member returning. Deciding to investigate anyway, they discovered the door forced open. A further check revealed that a wallet had been stolen from the kitchen.

Some items from the wallet were found in the cellar but the wallet was not recovered. Police report it contained personal items and identification but no cash.

HONORED: Dr. Cari E. Schorske, left, professor emeritus of history at Princeton University and a Pulitzer Prize winner, receives an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Miami University President Paul G. Pearson.

Early in the week, police report that a third room on Dickinson Street was entered. Stolen from a first-floor apartment, entered through an unlocked window, was approximately $5 in change. Other items, police said, had been moved around.

A university student, packing prior to moving out of her dorm room in Laughlin Hall for the summer, made the mistake of leaving her door unlocked. She lost a jewelry box containing an estimated $1,000 in jewelry items, a Sony Walkman, two skirts and a pair of shoes. Total value: $1,250. The room was entered between Sunday afternoon and 12:15 Monday morning.

Township police report a Linden Lane home entered and a student's room in 1941 Hall on the university campus.

The home was ransacked after it was entered by removing a first-floor bedroom window. Stolen were a stereo receiver and turntable, tape deck and 35 mm camera worth a combined $500.

The student was returning to her room, which she had left unlocked, at 1:45 Sunday morning when she passed a black male carrying a black case and knapsack that looked as if they had come from her room. The victim ran after the suspect and chased him through the courtyard of the building before losing sight of him.

Police and university procurtors checked the area and recovered two sweaters valued at $20 each. Not recovered were jewelry items valued at $85, a nylon wallet containing $6, clothing and other personal items worth $596.

The suspect is described as 5-6, about 20, medium build, wearing a yellow T-shirt and blue baseball cap.

Truck Collision Fatal To Hamilton Motorist

Andrew Wascoe, a 57-year-old Hamilton Township resident, was killed last Wednesday when his car was struck by a flatbed trailer on Cherry Valley Road in Montgomery Township. A Somerset County medical examiner pronounced the victim dead at the scene.

Charges against the truck driver, Norman Spadaccini, 55, of Trenton, by Montgomery police are pending. A third driver, Maryann Pretto, 36, of Princeton, traveling behind the victim's car, was also injured. She was treated at Princeton Medical Center and released.

According to the accident investigation, Mr. Spadaccini lost control of his flatbed trailer transporting a backhoe while entering a sharp curve. The trailer began to fishtail, causing the truck to jackknife and enter the opposite lane where it struck the victim's small foreign car. The impact forced the 1983 Toyota back into a telephone pole, trapping the victim inside.

The flatbed trailer truck continued on, after the initial collision, and struck Ms. Pretto's 1981 sedan which was traveling behind the victim's car.

Mr. Spadaccini sustained minor injuries and was treated and released from the Medical Center. Police said he was transporting the backhoe from a Province Line Road construction site to a Hamilton Township landscaping firm where he is employed.

Tot, 4, Hit by Car. Four-year-old Jimmy Wells of 258 John Street, was struck by the right rear fender of a car Saturday, when he suddenly darted out in front of a car in front of 160 Witherspoon Street. He was treated at the Medical Center for a swollen face which he received from the impact.

According to police, the tot was walking on the sidewalk with his mother shortly after 5 p.m. As he was about to reach 160 Witherspoon, he suddenly ran along the side of a large, parked panel truck and darted into the street. There were no charges against the driver, Robert L. Schneider, 47, of Trenton.

Cyclist Is Injured. An 18-year-old bicyclist, Michael C. Otrók, 7 White Oak Drive, was injured last week when he ran into a car turning left from Vandeventer onto Wiggins Street. Knocked off his bicycle, Mr. Otrók was transported by a friend (at his request) to the Medical Center where he was treated for abrasions to his neck and shoulder. He told police that he was also experiencing difficulty in swallowing.

The investigating officer, Ptl. Steven Riccitello issued a summons for failing to yield to Michael N. Gallina, 19, of Spotswood. According to the accident report, the victim was traveling east on Wiggins and Mr. Gallina had been stopped at the Vandeventer stop sign when a second vehicle in front of the cyclist made a right turn from Wiggins into Vandeventer. The cyclist continued on and as the Gallina car began to make its turn onto Wiggins it was struck by the victim.

Damage on the Port Side. There were no injuries but there was some damage - not to a car but to a 24-foot sailboat. Walter J. Hofheinz of 62 Gulick Road was towing the boat on a trailer early Friday morning on Washington Road when the trailer began to swerve between Faculty Road and Ivy Lane. Mr. Hofheinz told Ptl. Michael Henderson that when he began to brake the swerving did not stop so he accelerated.

At that point the trailer jumped the curb, struck a no-parking sign and overturned, causing the sailboat to slip on to the roadway, damaging its port side.

An investigation revealed that the support beams holding the boat upright had broken off at a weld. There were no charges by Ptl. Henderson.

Trenton Trio Is Charged: Possession of Stolen Car

Three Trenton residents, two of them juveniles, have all been charged by Borough police with possession of stolen property, following their apprehension Saturday in a stolen car.

The driver, Anthony Williams, 18, was later released in 10% of $1,000 bail set by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. He is awaiting action by a Mercer County Grand Jury. The two juveniles, 15 and 17, were charged and later released to the custody of their fathers.

The incident began when Sgt. Donald Dawson and Ptl. Steven Riccitello saw a car driving the wrong way on John Street at 4:18 p.m. The officers attempted to stop the car, which continued nonchalantly on at a normal rate of speed until it finally stopped on Boudinot Street.

A computer check revealed that the car, a 1987 Mercury, had been stolen three days earlier from the Greenwood Circle area in Trenton. The car had been taken at knifepoint from the owner who was then kidnapped and robbed but who later managed to escape, according to the police information. Someone, Capt. Thomas Michaud reported, then removed the car's license plates and placed a temporary paper tag in the rear window.

When questioned by Borough police, the three occupants claimed to have borrowed the car from a friend. The two juveniles insisted they knew nothing and were just going for a ride with their friend.

An investigation by Trenton police is continuing on information obtained from Borough police. The $8,000 car was returned to its owner.

Charged With Shoplifting. A Cranbury resident, Michael S. Soler, 25, of Petty Road, has been charged by Borough police with shoplifting grocery items worth $27.84 from the Wawa Store on University Place. Soler allegedly walked out of the store with boxes of beefsteaks, chicken, pizza, pepperoni and other items without paying.

A description of the suspect and his pickup truck was given to the police. A short time after the call at 10:48 Thursday evening, police located the suspect's truck in the general area and found the missing items in back of the truck. As the investigation continued, the suspect was found walking nearby and Soler was later identified by a store clerk as the shoplifter. He was taken to headquarters, charged and later released with a complaint summons calling for his appearance June 17 in Borough court.

Fined In Court. In Township court last week Glenn Craig, 173 Witherspoon Street, was fined $265 and $30 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board for criminal trespass. The charge, originally burglary, was downgraded.

Craig was also fined $65 and $30 VCCB and placed on probation for a year for possession of burglary tools. A 30-day sentence to the Mercer County Correctional Center was suspended.

The Theft-of-the-Week: Guyot Dinosaur Is Taken

In what could merit a theft-of-the-week appellation, a dinosaur was stolen last week from a museum in Guyot Hall on the university campus.

This dinosaur, a three-foot long, ten-inch high plaster paris model of an Anrodemus, painted bronze, was taken from the top of a plexiglass display case in the center of the first floor. It is valued at approximately $500.

There were more thefts from university eating clubs on Prospect Avenue. When a student left her purse unattended on the second floor of the Campus Club between 1:30 and 2 Saturday morning, she lost her wallet containing $70.

In a second wallet theft, a student lost about $60 when her wallet was taken from her hookbag which she had left in the coat room of the Colonial Club. The victim placed the theft between 11 Friday night and 12:30 Saturday morning.

Still on campus, a student's 10-speed, Vista bicycle, unlocked, was stolen last week from the 4th entryway of Blair Hall. It is valued at $150.

A Spruce Street resident last week, left a bag of items in his car which was not locked. When he returned in the morning, the bag was still there but missing from inside was a Nikon camera and zoom lens and his wallet containing $55. His total loss: $700.

More fortunate is a resident of Morven Place. His 1987 Mercedes, valued at $38,000, was stolen overnight from his garage which was entered through an unlocked side door.

The car was later recovered by Lawrence Township police, abandoned in a housing development off Franklin Corner Road. The car was undamaged and had been driven only 8-10 miles, the distance from the garage to the location where it was recovered.

"He was lucky to get it back," commented Capt. Thomas Michaud. The keys, he said, had not been left in the car.

A $2,500 Bath. A whirlpool, cast iron bathtub, valued at $2,500 was stolen last week from a garage at the construction site of a new home on Montdale Drive off Cherry Hill Road. Township police identified the victim as A.J. Rainford Plumbing and Heating of Edison.

A Kendall Park fisherman, fishing last week on the south side of Carnegie Lake near the Harrison Street Bridge, lost more than a catch. Police said when he left his gear behind to check another area of the Lake, someone stole his tackle box and contents valued at $300, a $75 fishing reel and a second box containing two sets of car keys. Total loss was $455.

Two cassette tapes valued at $8 each were stolen last week from the unlocked car of a Lawrenceville resident while it was parked Thursday morning in the Unitarian Church lot off Cherry Hill Road, and a boy's 20-inch Raleigh bicycle valued at $150 was taken the same day from a rack at Community Park School. Police report it had been secured to the rack with a cable lock through the front wheel.

A resident of Shady Brook Lane, shopping at a Princeton Shopping Center market last week, left her bag of groceries in her cart outside the store while she went to look at some nearby flowers and hanging plants. She was absent only ten minutes — time enough for someone to steal her $7.26 bag of groceries.

An estimated $10 in coins was stolen last week from the ice vending machine in the Princeton Shopping Center. A young boy standing 25 yards away, told police he saw two white males banging on the coin mechanism around 6 p.m. Thursday and some coins came out. When notified, owner Andrew Teague, 97 Leigh Avenue, told police he had just emptied the coin box and only coins left couldn't have amounted to more than $10.

One suspect is described as 24 to 30, 5-10, medium build; the second had brown hair and was wearing an olive drab T-shirt and blue jeans.

New Program Is Offered For Bike Registration

Borough and Township police and the Princeton University Department of Public Safety have combined their efforts in offering a new, free bicycle registration to school children, university students and residents. The joint program is in response to the increasing number of bicycle thefts in town each year.

"We probably have several dozen bicycles owned by Princeton residents in our garage right now that are unclaimed and unidentified," said Capt. Thomas Michaud of the Borough, in explaining the program. He estimated several hundred bicycles are stolen each year in the Princeton area.

It is not unusual for police, Capt. Michaud said, to investigate the theft of bicycles costing between $400-$800. "With the cost going higher and higher, it gets to be a significant loss," he added.

The program is underway right now with police going to various schools to register bikes of school children before vacation begins. The university will respond with an effort to register old students' bicycles in the fall.

To register a bicycle, a resident should bring his or her bike to their respective police department, and fill out pertinent information on a registration card. A blue and silver sticker will be applied to each bicycle for identification. The registration number on each sticker will be preceded by a B, T or U to indicate a resident of the Borough, Township or University.

A computer provided by the university will store all information about each registered bike, providing police with immediate access in the event of a theft.

Residents may register their bicycles by making an appointment with their police department. Registration at schools will be announced.

The numbers to call to make an appointment are: Borough police, 924-4141; Township police, 921-2100, and University Department of Public Safety, 452-3134.

Because the program provides a number of benefits, Capt. Michaud said he will be surprised if bicycle owners do not take advantage of it.

Retarded Will Benefit From Police Torch Run

More than 10,000 mentally retarded children and adults, registered in the New Jersey Special Olympics Summer Games at the William Paterson College in Wayne, will benefit from the third annual Law Enforcement Torch Run.

The Run will be held next Friday, June 12, and will start at the Governor's Office in

Reunions and Commencement Expected to Bring An Extra 10,000 People to Princeton this Weekend

Can this town absorb the influx of people and cars associated with Princeton University Reunions and Commencement?

Traffic, parking, restaurants and shops will be put to the test as alumni from classes from the early years of this century to 1986 — and in post 1970 years, alumnae, — return with their wives/husbands, friends/dates, children and grandchildren to become reacquainted with each other and the college they call "the best old place of all."

In recent years, the University has put this total at more than 10,000 people, here for a four-day weekend of partying that begins this Wednesday, when the first orange and black reunion costumes may be spotted on Nassau Street. Reunions reaches a climax on Saturday with the annual P-Rade down Prospect Avenue, starting at 2 p.m., and tapers off late Sunday.

However, Sunday brings a new influx of parents, grandparents and siblings here for a whole other set of receptions, meetings, gatherings and celebrations leading to Tuesday's 11 a.m. Commencement exercises in front of Nassau Hall. Trucks will be detoured away from Nassau Street so that Princeton President William Bowen, giving his last Commencement address, and other commencement speakers can be heard. Pouring rain will move the ceremony indoors to Jadwin Gym, but that — inexplicably — never happens to Princeton University commencements.

Wide Variety. Reunions activities include intellectual and cultural fare along with athletic contests between alumni and varsity, special subject or program gatherings, and tours of the campus. Alumni-faculty forums on topics range from "Preserving the Wild Life," to "What Do We Need to Defend Democracy," from "Children and Families: Policy Implications for the 21st Century" to "A Long Look at International Trade" and "First Ladies: Whither Woman's Place in the House?"

Saturday morning begins with an opportunity to meet Princeton President-elect Harold T. Shapiro at 8:30 in Richardson Auditorium. Professor of Chemistry, emeritus, Hubert Alyea will give his popular annual demonstration of "Lucky Accidents, Great Discoveries and the Prepared Mind" from 9 to 10:15 in Kresge Auditorium.

Saturday also includes a forum with alumni of several classes on "The Impact of AIDS" at 10:30 in Woodrow Wilson bowl 6 and a Memorial Jazz Stomp at 11 in Richardson Auditorium. Following the P-Rade at 2 from front campus along McCosh Walk and Prospect Avenue to Clarke Field, there will be a meeting of the entire Alumni Association in the baseball field.

Alumni and townspeople who missed Princeton Triangle's Business Unusual may catch one of the four performances Friday and Saturday evenings, at 7:30 and again at 10:30 each evening. There will be explanatory tours of the Putnam Sculpture Collection on campus throughout the weekend, and a tour of Drumthwacket, the official N.J. governor's mansion on Friday from 10:30 to noon.

Commencement Activities. For the graduating seniors and their families, commencement events begin with the Baccalaureate Service Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Princeton University Chapel. George Rupp, president of Rice University, Houston, Tex., will give the address.

Following the service, seniors and their families are invited to a garden reception at Prospect, given by President and Mrs. William Bowen. There will be a Princeton University Symphonic Band Concert at 8:30 on the front lawn of Nassau Hall, followed by the traditional Senior Step Sing in Blair Arch at 10 p.m.

On Monday, Class Day ceremonies for the awarding of various prizes takes place at 11 on Cannon Green, behind Nassau Hall. The Senior Prom is from 9 to 1 at Jadwin Gym, followed by more partying available in the Student Center until 3 a.m.

Tuesday morning, the University Band starts playing at 10 a.m. while parents and friends claim seats in front of Nassau Hall. The academic procession begins precisely at 10:35, and commencement itself will take just an hour, including the awarding of honorary degrees. The identity of the recipients is a closely guarded secret beforehand, and it is a Princeton tradition that a degree is not awarded in absentia.

Those wishing to sponsor a police officer should mail their donation to: Law Enforcement Torch Run, New Jersey Special Olympics, 242 Old New Brunswick Road, Piscataway, 08854. For additional information, call Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt, State Delegate, at 924-4141.

New Asst. Principal Is Named at High School

Marylou Coviello has been appointed assistant principal at Princeton High School. She replaces Florence Burke, who retired after 43 years at the school.

Ms. Coviello, a resident of North Bergen, has been supervisor of the English Department at Secaucus High School since 1980. She taught English at Fort Lee High School from 1970-80.

Under the previous salary schedule, Ms. Coviello's annual salary would have been $49,383. However, negotiations are currently underway between the Board of Education and the ad-

Use Variance Sought By Alliance Church

As TOWN TOPICS went to press Tuesday, Princeton Alliance Church was scheduled to appear before the Township Zoning Board of Adjustment that night to permit a church sanctuary and classroom and office building on Mt. Lucas Road. The Zoning Board was unable to include the Alliance Church in its regular meeting last Wednesday, when the Giardino application took up the entire evening, and an extra meeting was scheduled.

A concept plan showing a 35,000-square-foot building with a church sanctuary seating 1,200 and 12 classrooms across a courtyard was shown to the Zoning Board in early April. Parking for 327 and a bell tower are a part of the plan, along with future additions totalling 25,000 square feet and 237 additional parking spaces.

Michael Valentine, who came to Princeton four years ago and started the church by placing a few ads to draw anyone interested, told the board the church was part of the worldwide Christian and Missionary Alliance and that it now has about 400 members. Offered an option, which expires July 1, to purchase 26.1 acres on top of the ridge, he told the Zoning Board he was "seeking an opportunity to grow."

The long range plan calls for a 2,000-seat sanctuary — 200 more than the Princeton University Chapel — and 25 classrooms. The 60,000-square-foot facility would also include offices for the staff, which presently numbers nine, according to Mr. Valentine.

Otherwise An Office. He emphasized that there is no specific timetable for this construction; the long range plan is "what we as a church want to experience and what we hope will someday take place, God willing," Mr. Valentine said. About 20 acres of the property lies in the office-research zone OR-1, where the ratio of building to lot size (floor-area-ratio, or FAR) is eight percent. The total FAR of the church at build-out would be five percent.

Churches are not a permitted use in this zone, and thus Princeton Alliance Church will need a use variance. It was pointed out in the concept review that a 70,000-square-foot office building could be built on the 20 acres, requiring parking for 280 cars. The rest of the property, along Mt. Lucas Road, is in residential zones requiring three and four acre minimum lots.

According to a memo to the Planning Board from Planning Director Duggan Kimball, the Planning Board's master plan subcommittee and its zoning amendment review committee have proposed a zoning amendment for the tract, which if adopted, will make church use a conditional use under the jurisdiction of the Planning Board. Otherwise the Planning Board's role will be purely advisory to the Zoning Board of adjustment — as it was in the Giardino townhouse application. Mr. Kimball did not specify the nature of the amendment.

Because the tract is on the ridge, some of the same issues that surfaced in that application are likely to be raised in this. Mr. Kimball has noted the presence of a number of stream corridors on the property, as well as the existence of "hydric soils," which are indicators of possible wetlands. He has also suggested that specimen trees should be plotted on the site plan and the design layout

Mayor Answers Charges In Joan Hill Suspension

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We believe it is necessary to clarify several key points which have been attributed to Civil Rights Director Joan Hill's attorney in the press regarding last week's decision by Mayor and Council to uphold her suspension by the Borough administrator for behavior on August 27, 1986. We specifically refer to the following allegations:

1. No other Borough employee has ever been disciplined for activities performed away from the job.

During the last three years alone, the Mayor and Council of the Borough demanded monetary restitution and resignation of a fire chief for off-duty behavior and recently terminated the employment of a probationary police officer for allegations surrounding his off-duty conduct within the community where he resides.

2. Ms. Hill was acting in a personal, not in an official capacity when she was stopped last August. Ms. Hill was off duty and on vacation at the time of her arrest.

In this regard we quote the administrator's observation: "To recognize such an excuse would be tantamount to condoning the most inappropriate and abusive conduct, short of commission of a crime, so long as it did not occur on the job. Courtesy and good will are not restricted to a 9 to 5 day!"

In addition to this generally accepted principle of personnel practice, it should be noted that during the course of the videotape it was Ms. Hill herself who emphasized several times to the arresting officer that she is the director of civil rights.

3. No one pressed charges or specified what the charges were.

In the judgment of the Borough administrator, there was sufficient cause for investigation triggered by the complaint included within the decision of Judge Souter and the formal transmission of that decision to the Borough by Princeton Township authorities.

Since there was a videotape of the proceedings readily available to indicate what had transpired, it was appropriate to review the charges within the entirety of that videotaped exchange.

4. The Civil Rights Commission, which is considered Ms. Hill's direct supervisor, had no complaints with her performance.

Ms. Hill works with the Civil Rights Commission. In terms of personnel procedures Ms. Hill is an employee of the Borough. She is under the direct authority of the Borough administrator under policies established by the Mayor and Council. All other Borough department heads working with commissions, boards, and committees have the same status and operate under the same personnel procedures.

5. The Council is incapable of acting as a judicial body and has decided to finesse their way out of it politically.

Throughout these proceedings the Council has insisted that due process rights of Ms. Hill, as a Borough department head and employee, be respected. We ourselves objected to political pressure to prejudice Ms. Hill or to otherwise impair the work of the Princeton Civil Rights Commission and its program. Even though we believe it would have been beneficial to the community to resolve the issues much sooner, we believe we have granted Ms. Hill every possible consideration and the rights of due process to guarantee that a fair, non-political judgment could be made.

6. The decision just goes to show how difficult it is for a black person to receive a fair trial at the hands of elected officials in the community.

We believe that the Borough administrator, as well as the Mayor and Council, have accorded Ms. Hill every possible opportunity to review this incident, to postpone the original administrative hearings until she was better prepared, to schedule additional hearings, to present witnesses, and to provide direct explanations for the behavior witnessed on the videotaping of the events of August 27, 1986.

Mayor and Council stand prepared to respond to such challenges to our decisions as listed above. This is a healthy and reasonable process in a democracy. But, by definition, it is impossible to respond to generalized and non-specific allegations of "discrimination."

Shocked by the Decision To Uphold Ruling on Hill

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a letter I have written to Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund:

I very recently heard the results of the decision that was made by Borough Council and Mayor concerning the position of Joan Hill as Director of the Joint Commission on Civil Rights.

I would like to personally inform you that I am shocked by the decision to uphold the ruling made by the Borough Administrator, Mark Gordon. Furthermore, as I have publicly stated in the past, I view this decision as a sign of discrimination against blacks living in the town of Princeton.

Unfortunately, the time is long overdue for all vestiges of racism in Princeton to be rooted out and permanently destroyed. To this end, I am officially declaring an "all out war" against racism in Princeton. I am calling on all organizations that represent minorities in this town to assist us in this great undertaking. Any "perceived" act of discrimination based on the color of one's skin will be met with protest, demonstration and media coverage.

Blacks in Princeton have been pushed beyond the acceptable level of toleration. If necessary, we will call upon the expertise of the N.A.A.C.P., the National Urban League, and other civil rights organizations, to bring nationwide attention to the continuous acts of overt and covert racism encountered by minorities in the town of Princeton.

We will address the issues of discrimination in professional employment of blacks in Princeton industries and businesses, housing, and political representation. For too long, well-meaning individuals have attempted to quiet the voices of protest against discrimination for the sake of convenience.

For too long, men and women have looked the other way instead of handing a death blow to racism. We intend to peacefully and non-violently expose bigotry where it is, and let the chips fall where they may.

This struggle will not run out of steam. It will not come to an unsuccessful ending. We will not pack our bags and take our voices to another place. Because we are on the side of justice.

While true peace is the presence of justice, a true community is the presence of equality for all of its citizens. This is our aim. To make Princeton a true community. True to itself, its history, its citizens, and most importantly, true to its future.

We will not fail, because the arm of God is bent towards justice. The moral ark of the universe is long, but it sways towards justice. The emergence of this nation is founded on justice. And if there were ever a town, truly structured so that it might be truly inclusive to all of its citizens, it is the mecca of American tradition and academic freedom known as Princeton.

Traffic & Parking. Other issues likely to be raised are the size and scale of the parking area, and whether it can be mitigated. Traffic making a short cut through the parking area to get from Mt. Lucas to Bunn Drive, or the reverse, was raised at concept review by neighbors. Mr. Kimball also questions the entrance design on Bunn Drive.

The property borders Hilltop Park, opposite Princeton Community Village on Bunn Drive, and it was suggested that park users could use the church parking lot on weekdays. James Dill of Geddes Brecher Qualls Cunningham, which drew up the concept plan, told the Zoning Board that the plan avoids disruption to vegetation and to the sloped area of the tract, minimizes re-grading and stays away from the environmentally sensitive area on the northeast.

There was discussion at the concept review about the extent to which the facility would be used by other groups and whether conditions ought to be built into approval regulating this other use. One neighbor, concerned about the overall scale, called it "impressively and worrisomely large."

The proposal has generated a good deal of comment in the community, and Tuesday's meeting was expected to draw a good audience.

Project Manager Named For Greenway Project

Elizabeth Hutter has been named project manager of the Delaware and Raritan Greenway Project. Robert Johnston, chairman of the Greenway steering committee, made the announcement.

Mrs. Hutter has worked for many years in environmental matters, helping to establish policy on open space, as a member of Township Committee and the Regional Planning Board. With her late husband, Edwin (Peter) Hutter, she was a member of the Friends of the Environment, the progenitor of Friends of Princeton Open Space.

The Greenway Project is envisioned as a network of preserved natural land extending a mile or two on either side of the Delaware & Raritan Canal State Park, and ultimately along the waterways of the Stony Brook-Millstone basin. The Project is a two-year effort by several of the region's environmental organizations to identify and protect critical natural lands throughout the region, focusing on the formation of a chain of preserved open space linked by the D & R Canal Park.

Organizers point out that the landscape of central New Jersey is rapidly changing, and open space is being lost in spite of broad public support for its protection. They feel that the next 10 years will see the region almost fully developed unless action is taken now.

The five founding organizations are the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association, Friends of Princeton Open Space, Middlesex-Somerset-Mercer Regional Council, The D&R Canal Commission, and the D&R Canal Coalition. They propose to draw up maps and make land inventories, and to enlist agencies, municipal and county governments and property owners "to cooperative action, so that the best possible (Greenway) plan can be achieved."

The Project's budget for the two-year period is $145,000. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association will serve as the host organization. A steering committee of representatives of environmental organizations and government and private citizens from the municipalities in the region will direct the work.

The organizers plan to raise money to buy land or to buy easements; to receive tax-deductible contributions and easements of land; and to influence local planning and zoning boards to save land in the network.

Journalist Will Speak At Stuart Commencement

Stuart Country Day School will hold commencement exercises for 27 seniors on Wednesday, June 10. Karen Elliott House, foreign editor of the Wall Street Journal and a Stuart parent, will deliver the commencement address.

Ms. House received a Pulitzer Prize in 1984 for distinguished reporting on international affairs for articles on the Middle East. A native of Texas, she began her career as an education reporter for the Dallas News after receiving a degree in journalism from the University of Texas in 1970. She then became a political reporter in its Washington, D.C., bureau.

She joined the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau in April, 1974, and for four years covered regulatory agencies, energy, environment and agriculture. From 1978-83 she covered foreign affairs as the paper's diplomatic correspondent. In 1983 she moved to New York as assistant foreign editor and in 1984 she was named foreign editor.

The Stuart commencement day begins at 9 with a Baccalaureate mass celebrated by the Rev. Patrick Connor, SVD, school chaplain. The upper school prizes and awards ceremony follows at 10:30. Diplomas will be awarded at a 5 p.m. outdoor ceremony by Sister Joan Magnetti, RSCJ, headmistress, and L. Eric Solomon, chairman of the board of trustees.

Anonymous $5 Million For Computer Center

Princeton University has received a $5 million pledge from an anonymous alumnus toward construction of a building to house its Department of Computer Science.

The planned computer science building is projected to cost $14 million and is being designed by the New York architectural firm of K.M. Klimment & Frances Halsband. The four-story, 51,500-square-foot structure will be located at the corner of Olden and William Streets, across from the Engineering Quadrangle, where the department is currently located.

Plans for the new building have been filed with the Planning Board, and groundbreaking could take place this fall.

Parking Will Be Banned In Alley Next to WaWa

Borough Council has introduced an ordinance banning all stopping and standing in the alley between WaWa and the new Davidson's Supermarket. The alley runs from Nassau Street to the Engineering College at Princeton University.

A public hearing on the ordinance is scheduled for the Borough Council meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Scuba Diving Course At Community Pool

The Recreation Department, in cooperation with Princeton Aqua Sports, will offer courses in scuba diving at the Community Pool.

Academic and pool training (Part I) is six sessions and will be held Saturday mornings from 8 to noon. The first course will be held June 6 to July 18 (minus July 4), and the second is July 18 to August 22. The cost is $120 for Community Pool members and $150 for non-members. Princeton residents are given first choice for space in the course.

For scuba certification, students will also need Part II, open water training, which will be given separately by Princeton Aqua Sports. Registration is at Princeton Aqua Sports, 306 Alexander Street.

Princeton Aqua Sports will also sponsor an introduction to scuba diving at the YM-YWCA pool on Wednesday, June 17, from 7:30 to 9:30. A slide show describing scuba diving will be followed by a short lecture on the fundamentals. Participants will be guided through the use of scuba gear in the shallow end of the pool.

The minimum age for participation is 12. Those under 18 must have a parent sign a release waiver, available at Princeton Aqua Sports. Participants should bring a bathing suit and towel, and must be present for the slide show and lecture before the pool demonstration. The fee is $10 and will be deducted from the YMCA course fee if sign-up is by September.

Call Princeton Aqua Sports at 924-4240 for further information and to sign up.

— which will be presented by the University to Borough Council at Council's Tuesday night meeting — cars coming from either direction on University Place may pull, head in, in front of the station building. In order to make this possible, the University will eliminate the section of the proposed station plaza that would have been in front of the building.

It will still be possible, too, for cars heading north on University Place to pull into the bay of the proposed plaza for drop-off or pick-up of passengers.

In addition, the mayor reported that the Borough, University, and Traffic and Transportation Committee will meet no later than a year from now to discuss access to the new parking lot. Currently, only entrance from University Place will be permitted. The Borough has stated that an exit onto University Place might be desirable. As it stands now, exit must be made at the south end of the lot, onto Alexander Street.

tention of the regional field supervisor, who in turn alerted the regional director of personnel, Hoover Pitcock. Mr. Pitcock came up from regional headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., to assess the situation and place ads in area newspapers. "Woolworth's in Princeton is one of our older stores, but it is extremely successful," Mr. Pitcock said by telephone from Atlanta. "We want to see that it is staffed properly. I was surprised in looking at newspapers up there to see how much 'help wanted' lineage there was."

The Woolworth ads, which stress "the friendly work environment" and full time benefits, resulted in the hiring of a couple of people, which, with a transfer from another store, "pretty much solves" the present needs, Mr. Pitcock said. But Woolworth's plans some refurbishing, to be completed by the time school opens, which will require an additional three or four people. The starting wage is $4.50 an hour.

Mr. Pitcock served in the Woolworth's south central region, headquartered in Texas, before being transferred to Atlanta. "I don't think the problem is as acute in other parts of the country as it is in Princeton," he said.

Prestige Factor? Eileen Long, who has been with Lan-dar's for eight years and was put in charge of personnel full time as Human Resources Director four years ago, suggests that retail jobs are service-oriented and are viewed as lacking prestige. "There is a negative attitude toward service jobs nowadays. People want to go into the professions," she says.

"Retail is also perceived as being less prestigious, at least in this part of the country. There is a different cachet toward working for Princeton University, or even for chain stores like Banana Republic and Talbots."

During the six months when Edith's Lingerie was seeking full or part time help, Edith devised a cleverly worded ad, playing on the nature of her business in slightly risqué double entendre, which she placed prominently in the front of this paper hoping to catch the attention of a prospective employee. "All I got were phone calls from customers, who called to tell me they enjoyed the ad," she says.

Food Stores Affected. Burger King keeps its "Applications Being Taken" sign hanging permanently in its front window, and store manager Bud Lourie, who has been in the business 15 years, says this year is the worst he has ever experienced. "The work force isn't there," Mr. Lourie says. "Not like it used to be."

Burger King starts its workers at $4, and turnover is high. Mr. Lourie says it is very hard to get workers to stay. They find the work too hard, or too repetitive, or they notice that down the street they can get the same wage at the newsstand, where they think it's easier, he says.

Like other employers in this employee market, he offers flexible shifts and merit increases. Burger King has a training film for each of 13 different positions, from how to make a whopper to how to make french fries, and an employee can progress from one to another. But Mr. Lourie finds that very often a new employee stays two or three days and leaves.

"I don't think the work force is there," Mr. Lourie repeats. "They don't want to work. They don't care. They don't pride themselves in accomplishing something. They do their turn and go. It's an industry problem, making a bad situation in the restaurant." With three shifts, for which he can use 60 employees, Mr. Lourie makes do with 40.

If someone sees the sign and comes in, he is apt to hire the person on the spot, knowing that if he doesn't he will lose that person to competition along the street. "We're not as fussy as we used to be," Mr. Lourie says.

Kathy Flynn, manager of Squire's Choice, which has also advertised for kitchen and counter staff, points out that Princeton has many more take-out food outlets than before, and each is competing for help. Squire's Choice itself has grown, requiring a doubling of staff from four to eight, she says. It also pays the monthly parking fee, $75 a month in the Chambers Street Garage, for each of its staff, a practice which varies among businesses, with some picking up part of that tab and others contributing nothing for parking.

Lou Funk, manager of Davidson's, echoes Mr. Garretson in laying much of the blame for any difficulty in attracting and keeping employees to the parking situation in Princeton. Both feel strongly that a municipal parking garage is long overdue.

"The parking is non-existent," Mr. Funk says. "An employee gets a few parking tickets, and that's it, they leave, they can't afford it. The lack of parking is a deterrent. It's a terrible situation, and it is getting worse every year. It's not this way at the malls and the shopping centers. It's in the center, where there is no parking."

However, Phyllis Gearran, personnel director at K-Mart in Mercer Mall, which is advertising for sales help in its automotive, sporting goods and apparel departments, and where, presumably, there is plenty of free parking for employees as well as shoppers, pinpoints the problem to a shortage of people who are willing to start at the bottom and work up. "Young people are unwilling to start at $3.50 (minimum wage is $3.35 and has been at that level since 1981); they think they're worth $5," Ms. Gearran says.

Toys 'R Us, Route 1, has a big "Help Wanted" sign posted out at the highway and another in its store window, more evidence that Princeton is not alone in its employment problems and that its parking difficulties are not solely to blame.

Other Sectors Affected. For a time in May, Don Barr, Recreation Department director, was worried whether he would be able to open the Community Pool Memorial Day weekend as scheduled. The two full time maintenance workers were hard pressed getting Community Park fields ready for Little League and men's softball, and he was having trouble finding help to get the pool ready in time for the prerequisite inspection by the Health Department.

"Normally by this time of year, we have two or three on board to help us out. This year we had no one, until the colleges began letting out." The Recreation Department also had far fewer applications than usual from which to choose staff for its summer day camp.

"It's been a curious thing," Mr. Barr says. "There is not the work force available to pull people from. If I were to take an educated guess at why, I'd say it's due to Route 1 (development). And we've spent more time advertising this year than in the past."

Both municipalities have endeavored to bring the salaries of municipal workers more in line with those offered on Route 1, but the CAP law, which limits the percentage increase in the municipal operating budget, and a desire not to increase the burden on taxpayers more than is necessary limits the amount. The Planning Board, for instance, was without a secretary for many months. A person answering the ad would stay long enough to learn the computer and leave, presumably to take the new skill to a higher paid office position elsewhere.

Technical engineering personnel, such as draftsmen and surveyors, are in as short supply as secretarial and clerical help, reports Township Administrator James J. Pascale.

'Not Interested.' Judith Ferguson, business administrator for the Princeton Regional Schools, reports keen competition among area businesses, institutions and even private homes for custodians and food service workers. "We had a desperate time one whole year trying to find a baker," Dr. Ferguson says. "Finally we ended up training someone already on the staff."

Another aspect of the employment situation is the difficulty the school system has experienced in getting contractors to build or bid on projects, that can't be done in-house, such as renovating fields and grounds, installing air conditioning and renovating classrooms. "They seem not to be interested," Dr. Ferguson remarks.

The question asked by many of those interviewed is: If Princeton is experiencing difficulty, how are all those Route 1 stores and shops — and even the offices — going to find sufficient help? The Route 1 corridor is becoming ever more a high-tech business service economy, but who will serve these businesses?

The Achievement Medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

He is a 1982 graduate of Hopewell Valley High School.

Eileen Person of Belle Mead, mathematics and computer science teacher at Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, has been named a 1987 Distinguished Teacher by the Commission on Presidential Scholars.

Mrs. Person was identified by Stuart senior Julie Leegwater-Kim, a 1987

Peter Biro

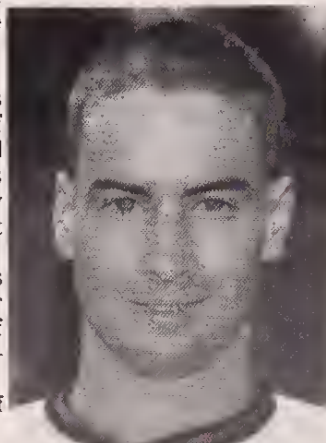

Presidential Scholar, as "having had the most significant positive impact" on her education.

More than 100 cited teachers from across the nation are expected to join the scholars for National Recognition Week to be held in Washington, D.C., June 14-18. Among the events planned are a briefing by the Department of Education at Georgetown University, a luncheon hosted by Mrs. George Bush at the National Press Club, a performance by the Presidential Scholars in the Arts at John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, a breakfast with Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, and a ceremony on the south lawn of the White House.

Daniel E. Maurer, son of James and Margaret Maurer, 6 Lancashire Drive, Princeton Junction, has been named to the Honor Roll at East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

Cathy Jones, of Princeton Junction, was chosen to serve as a peer counselor for the fall semester at Mercer County Community College.

Arri Parker, 43 Southern Way, won first place in the annual communications contest held by New Jersey Press Women.

Al Aiken, of Princeton, was a starting attackman for the University of Hartford lacrosse team this year. As a sophomore in his second season, he scored 15 goals and had seven assists.

Alto saxophonist Marcus McDonald led his quartet to an evening of jazz recently at the Havana Restaurant in New Hope, Pa.

The quartet's guest drummer was Mr. McDonald's brother Simeon Cain, formerly of the local rock group, Regressive Aid, and more recently an SST Records recording artist with the band Gone.

The brothers are graduates of Princeton High School.

David Mackey, a teacher at Princeton High School, is among 16 teachers in the state to receive the Governor's Awards in Arts Education. He was presented with the Outstanding Art Educator Award by Gov. Thomas Kean in ceremonies in Trenton.

Also, John D. Hixson II, a student at Hopewell Valley Central High School, and John Totaro, a student at Princeton Day School, are among 113 students statewide to receive the awards.

Debra Townsend and Deborah Bratsko, of Pennington, and Stacey Twichell, of Hopewell, have been inducted into Psi Beta, the national psychology honor society for George Bush at the National two-year colleges. They are students at Mercer County Community College.

Kenyon College freshman Jamie Zahner, son of Ann and John Zahner, 25 Hamilton Avenue, a graduate of Princeton Day School, was awarded his first varsity letter as a member of the Lords lacrosse team.

Paul Capucci, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Cappucci, 38 Platz Drive, Skillman, has been named to the Dean's List at King's College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Rebecca Van Dyck, daughter of Nicholas and Marcia Van Dyck, 2 Queenston Place, a graduate of Princeton High School, will attend Macalester College in Saint Paul, Minn., in the fall.

Two long-time Rutgers University faculty members, Dr. Daniel Gorenstein, 8 Lemore Circle, Rocky Hill, the Jacqueline B. Lewis Professor of Mathematics, and Dr. Elihu Abrahams, 108 Clover Lane, the Bernard Serin Professor of Physics, were elected to the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), in recognition of their distinguished and continuing achievements in original research.

They were among 59 men and women voted into the academy at its annual meeting in Washington, D.C. Election to the NAS is considered one of the highest honors that can be accorded an American scientist.

Dr. Gorenstein was nominated by the academy's mathematics section for leading a successful 20-year "attack on a fundamental problem of algebra, the determination of all finite simple groups The solution, of great length, is an outstanding achievement of contemporary mathematics."

He is also known for his seminal work in commutative algebra, where the term "Gorenstein rings" is a household word for mathematicians. He proved many landmark theorems in finite group theory and in the course of this work explained ideas and techniques of central importance. His invention of signalizer functors provided mathematicians with one of the fundamental tools for the classification of finite simple groups.

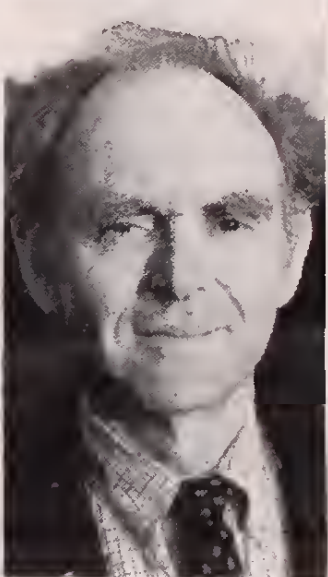

Dr. Abrahams was nominated by the NAS physics section as "a pioneer in the development of many-body and condensed matter theory. His early detailed investigation of electron-electron scattering in metals ... underlies the Fermi liquid theory."

Among Dr. Abrahams' other achievements are his fundamental work in the field of impurity conduction, and contributions to fields such as magnetic resonance, superconductivity, superconducting fluctuations, critical point theory and threshold singularities.

Bulletin Notes

The Rev. Dr. Luther H. Kriefall of Tacoma, Wash., former pastor of Lutheran Church of the Messiah, will return to preach the sermon Sunday at 10:30. This is Pentecost Sunday, and three young members will be confirmed.

Dr. Kriefall will be in Princeton for the graduation of his son Hans from Princeton University. Special music will be presented by the senior choir under the direction of Jean Breza with John Peck organist. The Rev. Dr. John M. Goerss, pastor, will conduct the service.

At 7 p.m. Sunday, the Rev. Herbert Hinman will be installed as executive director of the Lutheran Social Services of New Jersey at Lutheran Church of the Messiah. Area leaders of the Lutheran Church in America, American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will officiate. A reception will follow.

Fellowship in Prayer, a non-denominational ecumenical group, will sponsor the final in its series of lectures entitled "Prayer in Our Modern World" on Thursday, June 11.

Marjorie Bankson, president of an ecumenical Christian group called Faith at Work, will speak on "Sacred Stories: The Bible, My Own, and Ours" at 8:15 at the Arts Council building. Ms. Bankson is a potter and a member of the Church of the Saviour in Washington, D.C. She will use the background of the bible as story to help individuals tell their own stories of spiritual journey.

The Kingston Presbyterian Church will hold its annual Strawberry Festival on Saturday from 6-8 p.m. For a generous portion of strawberries, home-made cake and ice cream, the recommended donation will be $2 for adults and children over 12 and $1 or children under 12.

Proceeds will go towards scholarships and expenses for the church-sponsored mission trip and work camp in Guatemala. During the week of July 11-19, church members will participate in a work project in Guatemala, including working with Habitat for Humanity, an ecumenical organization that seeks to rehabilitate housing in third world countries as well as in low-income areas of this country.

Rev. Charles A. Green will lead a session on "The Wesley Hymns" at the Adult Forum of the Princeton United Methodist Church on Sunday at 9:45 a.m. Coffee will be served in the Sanford Davis room at 9:30 a.m., and child care will be provided. Joyce Edwards will accompany the hymns.

The public is invited. For information call 924-2613.

The Separated & Divorced Catholics Support Group at St. Paul's Church will meet on Monday at 8 in St. Paul's School Cafeteria.

All are invited to hear George Colnaghi, a psychologist, speak on "Changing: Learning to be Ourselves." For further information call Carol at 896-3456.

The Rev. Michael C. Coburn of St. James' Church in Danbury, Conn. will be the guest preacher at the 10 a.m. worship service at the Princeton University Chapel on Sunday, the Day of Pentecost. His sermon topic will be "Breathing God."

OBITUARIES

Faith Whitney Ziesing, 75, a long-time Princeton resident, died of cancer on May 29 at her home.

During the last decade of her life, Mrs. Zeising was instrumental in the evolution of an innovative curriculum at Sterling College, Craftsbury Common, Vt. According to William Manning, former president of the college, she was "the major force in creating a program combining the liberal arts with environmental studies to form personal character and values."

Born in Durham, N.H., in 1911, she was the daughter of Caspar Whitney, a noted author, explorer and war correspondent, and Florence Canfield Whitney, who was a founder of the League of Women Voters and active in the political campaigns of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mrs. Ziesing graduated from the Shipley School in Philadelphia and from Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y. She taught the social aspects of economics at Sarah Lawrence and was a member of its board of trustees for many years.

She came to live in Princeton in 1951 and became involved in numerous social, educational and cultural activities here. She participated in the formation of Princeton Day School and served on the boards of the Association of the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute (now North Princeton Developmental Center), the Princeton Nursery School, The Youth Fund, and the advisory committee for the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation.

As a member of the board of the Friends of the Princeton University Art Museum, she combined a love of travel and art by leading many trips abroad. She was also formerly active in the March of Dimes in New York and was a former president of the New York Junior League.

She is survived by her husband, Hibben Ziesing; three daughters, Whitney Wing Opersdorff of Lincolnville, Me., Faith Wing Bieler of Waterbury Center, Vt., and Lucinda M. Ziesing of New York City; and four grandchildren.

A memorial service was scheduled to be held this Wednesday at noon at Trinity Church. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be sent to Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y. 10708.

Barbara Gray van de Velde, a former Princeton resident, died of cancer May 28 at her home in Middlebury, Vt.

Mrs. van de Velde was born in Washington, D.C. in 1923. She lived in Bethesda, Md., until she was 22, when she joined the U.S. Foreign Service staff. She was stationed for two years at the U.S. legation in Wellington, New Zealand, and later at the U.S. Embassy in Athens, Greece.

In 1949 she married Robert W. van de Velde, and as an Army wife, she lived in Maryland and New Jersey as well as in Washington, D.C. The van de Velde were stationed in Paris, France, when Col. van de Velde retired from the Army in 1957 and joined the faculty of the Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton University, as a lecturer in public and international affairs and assistant to the director.

During the 21 years she lived in Princeton, Mrs. van de Velde was active in the University League, the Democratic Party and in public school parent/teacher efforts. She was particularly concerned with and active in various civil rights and human rights causes.

The van de Velde retired from Princeton and moved to Middlebury, Vt., in late 1977. Mrs. van de Velde became an active volunteer at the Hsley Public Library in Middlebury.

Mother of the late R.W. van de Velde Jr., who died of a heart ailment in Middlebury in 1981, she is survived by her husband; two stepsons, Christopher of Philadelphia and Murray of Boston; and three daughters-in-law, Caroline of Manchester, Diana of Middlebury, and Lee of Philadelphia.

Contributions in her memory may be made to the Hsley Public Library Building Fund, Middlebury, Vt.

Erika Strauss, 84, a resident of Meadow Lakes, Hightstown, died of cancer May 29.

Born in Berlin, Germany, she lived in Holland during the war years and came to the United States in 1947. From 1947-49 she was an assistant to the librarian in Pendle Hill, a Quaker center for religious and social studies. In 1949 she became a cataloguer at the United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio, a position she held until 1970.

For the past 16 years, she worked as a volunteer cataloguer in Speer Library, Princeton Theological Seminary.

Surviving are two sisters, Kate Solmsen of Essex Fells, and Marianne Weston of Oak Park, Ill., and seven nieces and two nephews.

According to her wish there will be no memorial service. Donations in her memory may be made to the Meadow Lakes Residents' Assistance Fund, Hightstown, 08520.

Fred Johnson, a Princeton resident for 63 years, died May 26 at his home in the Borough.

Born in Lawrence, S.C., Mr. Johnson operated his own trucking service here and was a member of the Mill Rock Baptist Church in Lawrence.

Husband of the late Arlene K. Johnson, he is survived by a daughter, Cora Malloy of Ewing; a son-in-law, William Malloy of Ewing; and two sisters, Nannie Mae Kilgore of Hendersonville, N.C., and Emma Jones of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The service was held at a Trenton funeral home, the Rev. Michael Nabors, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Princeton, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

Anna F. Miklos, 73, of Hopewell, died May 29 in Deborah Heart and Lung Center, Browns Mills.

Born in Lorain, Ohio, Mrs. Miklos had lived in Hopewell for more than 50 years. She was a former secretary at Educational Testing Service and recently had worked in the Nutrition Center, Pennington. She was a member of the American Legion Post 339 Auxiliary of Hopewell, the Pennington Grange and the 39's Senior Citizen Group in Hopewell.

Wife of the late Gazi Miklos, she is survived by two sons, John (Dewey) Miklos of Plano, Tex., and Edward Miklos of Hightstown; a granddaughter, Michelle Miklos; two brothers, John Sabo of Hopewell and Edward Sabo of Clearwater, Fla.; and three sisters, Rose Devlin of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Margaret Kosloski of Linden, and Agnes Besta of Greenbrook.

Penelli; two daughters, Nancy Penelli of Hopewell and Linda Riley of North Carolina; three sons, William Jr. of New York City, Bradford of Groverville, and Anthony Penelli of Staten Island; two brothers, George Rinz of Hopewell and Joseph Rinz of Flemington; a sister, Josephine Ryba of Browns Mills; five grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

All on 9.2 acres. $695,000

After a Distinguished Career as a New York Legislator and a Statesman, Abbot Low Moffat Is Focusing His Energies on Borough Traffic Problems

The man who heads the Borough's Traffic and Transportation Committee is the same man who, some 50 years ago, helped bring the New York State Thruway to fruition.

Abbot Low Moffat, who celebrated his 86th birthday last month, has brought his prodigious experience and energy to bear on Princeton's traffic problems. Tackling an area that rates number one in vexation and frustration, he has helped draft a bold new traffic system that attempts to alleviate rush-hour congestion on Nassau Street's western end.

He also has taken a firm stand against Princeton University's proposed new traffic circulation pattern at the Dinky, and is currently working with the Borough and University towards a compromise of their conflicting positions.

Mr. Moffat spent 14 years, from 1929 to 1943, in the New York State Legislature, where he represented Manhattan's Silk Stocking District — the upper east side. In retirement, after moving to Princeton, he served on Township Committee from 1972-75. Shortly after he moved to Westerly Road in the Borough, Mayor Barbara Sigmund asked him to head the newly re-formed Traffic and Transportation Committee.

Abbot Low Moffat was born and raised in the New York City so immaculately chronicled by Edith Wharton. His parents moved to a house at 12 East 66 Street at the turn of the century, something that led their friends to inquire why they had decided to move to the country. Theirs had been a Brooklyn family for several generations; Mr. Moffat's great-grandfather had come down from Connecticut to buy a farm in Brooklyn Heights.

An uncle had taken advantage of the superb views from Brooklyn Heights to take, each year, a photograph of New York Harbor and the lower Manhattan skyline. The first, in Abbot Low Moffat, in his Westerly Road study.

1876, shows the spire of Trinity Church soaring above almost all the surrounding buildings. Another, a view in 1886, is of boats massed in the harbor to celebrate the Centennial of the Constitution.

A Headmaster's Influence. Mr. Moffat's political future was shaped at an early age. In 1904, his mother attended a lecture by Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton. "She was impressed with the talk," he said, "which said that education is not what you get in school, but what you hear in the home."

Afterwards, and for many years, Mrs. Moffat regularly attended lectures given to ladies by a Mrs. Fleming at The Colony Club. "One week she would talk about international affairs, another politics," Mr. Moffat said. "My mother, who had almost total recall, would bring the lecture to me, my brother and my sister. As I became older, I was interested in politics. My brother was interested in international affairs."

Both brothers' careers kept to these paths. J. Pierrepont Moffat, who was five years older than his brother, had a brilliant career in the State Department. At the time of his death, in 1943, he was Minister to Canada.

But, before entering politics, Abbot Moffat took time after his graduation from Harvard in 1923 to journey deep into Asia. He traveled through Korea, China, Tibet, and Indo-China — once for 26 days in a springless cart — and recalls that he was sometimes the first European to be seen by the inhabitants.

He was first elected to the State Legislature in 1929, the year fellow-New Yorker Franklin Delano Roosevelt was elected governor. (Both men's mothers lived on the upper east side of Manhattan, and were good friends.)

Mr. Moffat served as a Republican — often infuriating the Old Guard with his support of such legislation as tenement reform — but became a Democrat 40 years ago. ("I wrote Warren Moscow of the New York Times, a close friend, that I had become a Democrat," said Mr. Moffat. "He wrote back, 'That's no news; that's what you were all along.'")

One day, the young assemblyman went to tea at the Governor's Mansion in Albany. "The governor wasn't there," he recalled, "just Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Morgenthau. They began to ask questions about the multiple-dwelling legislation that dealt with tenement reform in New York. Both listened with great attention, and the next I knew, the Governor signed the bill."

A Master at the Game. Mr. Moffat watched the governor as he adroitly dealt with the Republican Old Guard. "Whatever Roosevelt said he wanted, the Old Guard opposed. As a re-

Stage One Productions To Open with Comedy

Combine four elderly sisters with three of their zany husbands, and an awkward couple in their forties (who have been engaged for 12 years), and you have the hilarious ingredients for Morning's at Seven. The 1939 comedy by Paul Osborn is the opening play when Stage One Productions returns for another season of theater at Rider College this summer.

Directed by Nick Procaccino, the company's producing director, the play opens on June 11 and continues through June 24 in the studio theater in the Fine Arts Building on the Rider College campus.

Winner of three Tony Awards in the 1980 Broadway season, the comedy takes an affectionate look at small town America during 1922. As the four Gibbs' sisters try to come to terms with the golden years of their lives, they lead the audience on a nostalgic trip to back porches, quiet evenings, and merry laughter.

Featured in the cast are members of the Stage One acting company who appeared in several of the troupe's previous successes: Herbert McAneny, June Connerton, and Cynthia Lake. Also featured are newcomers to Stage One performances, although not to the area theater scene: Petie Duncan, Ed Stout, Richard O. Swain, Mari Bernhagen, Bernice Hicks, and Andros Thomson.

Performances are on Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m., with Sunday matinees at 3. Tickets are $8 and $10 and may be reserved in advance by calling 683-0444.

McCarter Technology Featured on PBS Show

McCarter Theatre was recently chosen by the producers of the PBS series Innovation to be included in an upcoming episode which will examine the history of and recent advances in theatre technology.

The episode, which also includes "behind-the-scenes" glimpses at such Broadway shows as Cats, Starlight Express and Les Miserables as well as the work of Robert Wilson, will be aired on Channel 13, Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

The episode is comprised of several elements including interviews with directors, designers and historians, and footage of actual productions.

Producer Jill Peters and her crew came to McCarter during a technical rehearsal of Napoleon Nightdreams in March and filmed footage of technicians and actors at work, as well as demonstrations of the synthesizer used in the show, and interviews with director Nagle Jackson, playwright James McLure, lighting designer F. Mitchell Dana and composer Robert Sprayberry.

The episode will be repeated on Saturday, June 13 at 5 p.m. and Monday, June 15 at 1:30 p.m.

The cast includes sales people from the firm's offices throughout New Jersey and administrative employees from corporate headquarters in Wayne.

modeled on the classical farce form, will be directed by David Ganon.

Ganon, a veteran of the last two PST seasons, is best remembered for his popular staging of Starting Here, Starting Now for PST '85.

Moliere's Dan Juan, the second production, is a satire of the literary and theatrical legend. This comedy questions whether Don Juan is a hardened lady-killer or merely an innocent astray. Michael Kohler directs this play with many compromising situations, but no easy solutions.

Mr. Kohler recently staged the original piece, P.U.I.D., for the Program in Theater and Dance and has acted Love's Labors Last, Measure for Measure, and Bal as well as The Skin of Our Teeth for PST '85.

The next selection is Arms and the Man by George Bernard Shaw. In this comedy, an elegant young lady finds an enemy soldier taking refuge in her bedroom with her fiancée due to return from the front any minute. The situation gets more complicated as the entire household becomes enmeshed in the resulting turmoil. It will be directed by Kristin Branson, whose production of Deathtrap was put on by Theatre Intime last November.

Princeton Summer Theatre ends its season with Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream. What happens when the court of Athens is stripped of the restraints of civilization and absorbs the wild spirit of the magical forest dwellers? Robert Gleason, director of many campus productions, provides a new interpretation of this well-loved play. His projects have included Bent at the Program in Theater and Dance, Applause for the Triangle Club, and Theatre Intime's Twelfth Night.

Princeton Summer Theatre is housed in Murray Theatre, an intimate, air-conditioned theatre centrally located on the campus of Princeton University. PST '87 is being managed by graduating seniors Kristin Branson and Robert Gleason, who are serving as artistic co-directors.

"Torch Song Trilogy"
At Franklin Barn Theatre

The Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre will present Harvey Fierstein's Torch Song Trilogy, starting Friday at 8:30 and continuing weekends through June 27.

Director Mark Hopkins (who also directed last year's production of Jesus Christ Superstar) describes Torch Song Trilogy as a funny and poignant comedy about a man's struggle to maintain relationships with the people he loves. "Torch Song's main strength is its universality, although the play deals with the complex world of gay relationships," Mr. Hopkins said.

Playwright Harvey Fierstein received both the Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award for this work. Mr. Fierstein also wrote the book for the Broadway musical Cage aux Falles and is the author of Spookhouse and Safe Sex.

Featured in the cast is Gerard P. Lebeda as Arnold, a flamboyant drag queen with a quick wit. Mr. Lebeda, a veteran of the Villagers stage, has appeared in Baby, The Odd Couple, Retreads and Jesus Christ Superstar as Judas. The cast also includes Christopher John Williams, a veteran performer of Edison's Plays-in-the-Park, as Ed Reiss, a school teacher who loves Arnold but cannot make a long-term commitment.

Jennifer Smith, who appeared last season in The Miss Firecracker Contest, is Laurel — Ed's future wife. Bruce Ladd, whose past credits include The Diary of Anne Frank and Dr. Faustus, is Alan — a young model who is Arnold's new lover. Leanora Shames, whose credits include Plaza Suite and Second Time Around, is Mrs. Beckoff — Arnold's 60-year-old Jewish mother who is trying to come to terms with her son's lifestyle.

Steve Reisberg, who recently returned from a national tour with the Shoestring Players children's theatre troupe, portrays David — Arnold's adopted son.

Also featured in the cast are Olga Landin as Lady Blues and E. Michael McCaughey as Max, the accompanist. Working with Mr. Hopkins are designers Larry Budnick, lighting; Bill Jamieson, sets; and Camille Cusimano, costumes.

Performances are scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 and Sundays at 7:30. There will be one 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday, June 14.

Tickets are $8 Fridays, $9 Saturdays and $7.50 Sundays. There are discounts for students, senior citizens and groups on Fridays and Sundays only. For further information and ticket reservations, call (201) 873-2710.

The Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre is located behind the Franklin municipal complex at 475 DeMott Lane (between Amwell Road and Easton Avenue) in the Somerset section of Franklin Township.

Haydn's "The Creation" Crowns Pro Musica's Season

The performance Saturday evening of Haydn's The Creation by the Princeton Pro Musica was the crowning achievement of this ensemble's highly successful eighth season. Having previously heard stunning presentations of Bach's Christmas Oratorio and Verdi's Requiem, we have come to expect some surprising things from musical director Frances Slade and her 100 plus voice chorus. This performance substantiated those expectations.

Chorus and orchestra were joined in this performance by three exceptional soloists: soprano Gailanne Cummings Hubbard, tenor Frank Hoffmeister, and baritone David Arnold. Alto Ellen Pickett was added to the trio for the final chorus of the oratorio. Held in Alexander Hall, the performance was sung in a revised English translation.

The oratorio traces the biblical story of the creation of the world as found in the book of Genesis and augmented with excerpts from Milton's Paradise Lost. The first two parts tell of the formation of the earth, of night and day, and all the creatures of the earth, sea and sky. Haydn's music in the second section is especially charming, as he does some obvious text painting while the singers tell of the various beasts of the earth.

The final section is an extended hymn to the glory of God's creation, and to the wonders of human love. The libretto stops just short of the fall of humankind, though not without a prophetic statement sung by the tenor: "O happy pair! And happy evermore, if false conceit betray ye not, the more to covet than ye have, and more to know than ye should." The fact that it ends with such optimism is not unlike Haydn and prevailing attitudes in the 18th century.

The soloists were nicely balanced, both in vocal timbre and musicality. Mr. Arnold needs no introduction after the splendid job he did in Pro Musica's performance of Verdi's Requiem. His rich voice was a joy to hear again. He brings an opera singer's sense of expressiveness to his oratorio performances. Ms. Hubbard's voice was light and supple, especially suited to the coloratura passages found in her aria, "Now robed in cool refreshing green." Though her projection was not as consistent on the low end as we might have liked, her voice was nonetheless freely flowing throughout her range. Mr. Hoffmeister had a secure tenor voice which rang with striking clarity, especially in the upper register. In the trios and the baritone/soprano duets as Adam and Eve, these singers made some delightful music. Their ensemble work showed sensitivity to each other and to the demands of the text.

Mrs. Slade's chorus cannot be faulted on any point. The group was very well rehearsed and sang with confidence and gusto. Changes in choral color were convincing and very effective. The best example of this came in the first chorus, where they sang "And the spirit of God" in subdued tones, bursting forth with astonishing brilliance on "and there was light." Such responsiveness held true in the fugal choruses as well, notably the one closing the second part. Both text and musical line rang out with absolute clarity throughout these exquisite passages.

The orchestra likewise did not fail to please in this performance. Except in the third part where ensemble became a little ragged, the players worked together well, as responsive to their conductor as were the singers. The opening representation of Chaos was played with perfect intonation, so necessary to gain the full effect of Haydn's unusually dissonant harmonies. At all times the orchestra was held in good balance with the singers, regardless of the prevailing texture.

Certain individuals in the orchestra deserve mention. The continuo for recitatives consisted of harpsichordist Melinda Arnold and principal cellist John Enz. Ms. Arnold was also the rehearsal accompanist for the ensemble. James Scott did some wonderful work on the flute, especially in the soprano's aria, "On mighty wings." First chair horn player Dean Gittleman also got a rousing reception during curtain calls for his splendid work throughout the oratorio.

Apparently Mrs. Slade intends to continue her presentation of massive works for chorus and orchestra. Next year's programs include oratorios by Handel and Mendelssohn, and Mahler's Das Klagelied. Undoubtedly the glorious sound of this superb chorus and orchestra, under Mrs. Slade's very capable direction, will sustain their tradition of musical excellence.

—Lynn Arthur Koch

MUSIC

Apartheid Is the Topic Of Kurt Weill Musical

Kurt Weill wrote the music, and Maxwell Anderson wrote the book for a "musical tragedy" based on Alan Paton's Cry, the Beloved Country.

The musical is called Lost in the Stars, and will be presented June 11 and 13 in Richardson Auditorium in a new concert version by Mr. Anderson's son Alan. Its theme is apartheid in South Africa.

Princeton Festival Inc. of New York City will open its festival of three Kurt Weill musicals on Wednesday, June 10, with concert versions of Three Penny Opera and Happy End, both sung in German. There will be a repeat performance on Friday. All performances are at 8 p.m.

The cast for Lost in the Stars includes Metropolitan Opera prize winner Gordon Hawkins, Yvette Vanterpool, Barrington Coleman, Cheryl Freeman and 12-year old Clinton Ingram. Starring in Three Penny Opera and Happy End are Stephanie Myszak, Barbara Leifer, Mr. Coleman and Theodore Schorske of Princeton.

For tickets call 1-800-682-8080. Tickets are also available at the Richardson box office on the day of the performance.

Pre-tour Concert Set By University Chorus

The Princeton University Chamber Chorus, conducted by Prof. Walter Nollner, will give a pre-summer tour concert Friday at 7:30 in the Princeton University Chapel. Admission is free and the public is invited.

The Chamber Chorus, made up of members selected from the Princeton University Glee Club and the Princeton University Chapel Choir, numbers 45 singers. It will leave for a five-week tour of the South Pacific. The trip will include concerts or church services in Honolulu, at the University of Auckland and in Wellington, New Zealand, and the major cities of Australia.

Friday night's program will be made up of much of the unaccompanied music to be sung for the tour, including the William Byrd Mass for four voices, motets by Josquin, Randall Thompson, Berlioz and Billings, and spiritual arrangements by John Work.

Folk Singers Perform A Festival for Peace

Folk singer Mark Levy and six other folk singers will perform "A Folk Festival for Peace" on Saturday, June 13. Mr. Levy, a native of central New Jersey, who currently lives in California, will be appearing along with Joan Ogden, Caroline Moseley, folk duo Janet and Michael Campbell-Drexler, and Frank Ruck and Ellen Dyer from the Ex-Tradition Band at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Church.

Sponsored by the Social Concerns Committee of the Unitarian Church, the festival will celebrate the fifth anniversary of the June 12, 1982 Central Park Peace Rally.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit Beyond War and the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, both area grassroots peace organizations. Suggested donation is $6 in advance with reservations. For further information, call the Unitarian Church office, 924-1604.

Chamber Orchestra of the N.J. Symphony Ends First Season with a Grand Display

The Chamber Orchestra of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra ended its premiere season with a burst of energy and a grand display of superb musicianship. In a concert held in Alexander Hall Friday evening, the ensemble played works by Ravel, Tchaikovsky and Stravinsky with artistry and style, strengthening this group's burgeoning reputation. Musical director Hugh Wolff conducted the concert.

Four soloists, three singers and a cellist were featured in this performance.

The singers took part in a performance of the complete score of Stravinsky's ballet, Pulcinella (based on the music of Giovanni Battista Pergolesi): soprano Constance Beavon, tenor Frank Kelley, and bass John Ostendorf. Ms. Beavon's voice had a darkish sound, unusual for a soprano. Her projection was very strong, carrying nicely in the auditorium, and her enunciation was very clear. "Se tu m'ami" took on a beautiful quality with her vocal color, quite unlike the light, airy character the song is often given by singers of art songs, but no less charming.

Mr. Ostendorf sang expressively and had a good low range to his voice, though his singing tended to be muscular and his mid-range sounded a bit forced. Mr. Kelley's voice was clear and resonant with excellent sustaining power and vocal control. His timbre was of a very different nature than that of the other singers, and was sometimes hard to hear in the trio passages.

Cellist Carter Brey was heard in Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme (Op. 33). His tone had depth and was especially rich in harmonics. The sound he evoked from his instrument was sumptuous in the slower sections, and vigorously animated in the fast ones. His playing was very facile; the ornamentations in Tchaikovsky's variations were cleanly executed, as were the work's two brilliant cadenzas. At times the physical exertion in his playing was excessive. This made for some very exciting listening but held perils of its own. Mr. Brey missed the mark one or two times, though his momentum carried him through these times in fine fashion. The work flowed freely and smoothly with little hesitation, and served as a marvelous showpiece for Mr. Brey's technical and musical prowess.

Ravel's Le Tombeau de Couperin is scored for chamber orchestra from a set of piano pieces, yet is filled with the composer's characteristic timbral richness. Finely crafted melodies and pungent harmonies atypical of his style are enlivened by the interplay of colors in his orchestral palette. The work was skillfully rendered. This style of orchestration relies heavily on a strong wind section, especially first chair woodwind players. These sections performed with practiced agility, complementing the fine work done by the strings. The work's kaleidoscopic textures were played with the utmost clarity, reflecting Ravel's intent to infuse his music with the compositional austerity of 18th-century French music.

Stravinsky's ballet music gave the wind players another workout, and also featured concertmaster Christopher Collins Lee. His silver threads of pure violin sound served as a graceful and florid adornment to the fabric spun by the rest of the orchestra.

As played by this orchestra, these textures produced a very satisfying effect. The high energy of Allegro Assai and Tarantella made a lovely contrast to the relaxed fluidity of the instrumental Andantino and the soprano solo, "Se tu m'ami."

As musical director of this superb ensemble, Hugh Wolff is a treasure in which the whole state of New Jersey can take pride. His impeccable musicianship and attractive performance style are coupled with foresighted leadership. Best of all, in this series he brings his near-perfect performances of great chamber music right to our doorstep.

Hungarian cellist Imre Fournier and later with Pierre Fournier in Geneva and Leonard Rose in New York. He has received enthusiastic public acclaim and won excellent reviews for his orchestral performances in Europe, Russia, the United States and Mexico.

In 1981, the Mexican Association of Music Critics gave him its award as the "outstanding Soloist of the Year." Mr. Prieto's television specials have been featured throughout the world. His latest, featuring the Saint-Saens Concerto, will be airing this season throughout the United States on PBS-TV.

The Spanish Composer Joaquin Rodrigo as well as many eminent Mexican composers have dedicated works to Prieto. He has recorded for EMI/Angel the complete Bach suites, cello concertos by Shostakovich and Saint-Saens and sonatas by Kodaly, Martinu and Shostakovich. He has also made other recordings with works by Tchaikovsky, Mendelssohn, Paganini and Faure as well as by Mexican composers Rodolfo Halffter and Manuel M. Ponce.

Mr. Prieto has two sons enrolled at Princeton University, one of whom will be graduating June 9. The concert will be presented free of charge in honor of his graduation.

New and Unusual Works Set for Festival Concert

Milton Babbitt's Philomel, a piece for soprano, recorded soprano and synthesizer will be among the three pieces presented on June 25 at 8 p.m. at the June Opera Festival's concert of "Dramatic Scenes for Solo Voice." The concert will be held in the Kirby Arts Center at The Lawrenceville School.

Mr. Babbitt is William Shubael Conant Professor Emeritus at Princeton University, where he has been affiliated since 1938. Among his many awards and distinctions is a Pulitzer Prize Special Citation and a MacArthur Prize, known as the "Genius Award."

Philomel will be sung by Judith Bettina, who is known for her interpretation of 20th-century works, especially those by Mr. Babbitt. The concert program will also include Eight Songs for a Mad King by Peter Maxwell Davies and Arionna a Naxos by Franz Josef Haydn.

Mr. Davies composed Eight Songs for a Mad King in 1969 for six instruments and voice. A fanciful and powerful setting of the last days of George III of England, the work features unorthodox stagings — some of the instrumentalists play from "cages" and represent the mechanical birds which the insane king attempts to teach to sing.

Donald Bell, director of the Opera Workshop at the University of Calgary, will make his debut performance with the Festival in the role of the Mad King George III. Mr. Bell has performed at Bayreuth, Glyndebourne, Saratoga and Tanglewood, and has worked with George Szell and Leonard Bernstein.

Genie Grunewald will sing Arianna a Naxos by Franz Josef Haydn. Appearing also in this season's production of The Barber of Seville, Ms. Grunewald is a Festival veteran and graduate of Ohio State University School of Music.

The June Opera Festival opens June 16 with Richard Strauss's Ariadne on Naxos, presented in repertory with Rossini's The Barber of Seville through June 27.

Tickets for the concert are $25, $20, $15 and $8. For ticket information and schedules, call the box office at 683-5468, or write the June Opera Festival Box Office, Box 1379, Princeton 08542. Ticket holders are encouraged to picnic prior to all performances on The Lawrenceville School grounds.

Piano Recital Planned By Day School Senior

Princeton Day School senior James Weatherill will give a piano recital on Friday at 8 in the Herbert McAneny Theater, PDS campus.

The performance is the culmination of his six week independent senior project. The program will include selections from Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Gershwin, MacDowell, Joplin, Ravel, Schumann.

Japanese Prints, Books At Milberg Gallery Show

The Milberg Gallery for the Graphic Arts, despite its diminutive size, is gaining a reputation for mounting some of the area's most imaginative and pictorially splendid exhibitions. A case in point is the collection of Japanese prints and illustrated books which will be on display through July 19 in the gallery on the second floor of Firestone Library.

As has come to be expected at the gallery, the exhibit is thoughtfully organized, following the chronology of the prints, from the earliest mid-17th century works to the most recent (mid-19th century). A clear and concise explanation of the method of printmaking is accompanied by an illuminating display of the tools used to create them. Explanations of the context in which the prints were created are crisp and to the point, adding an informative social dimension to the exhibit's artistic interest.

The woodcuts were a product of Japan's Edo period, which lasted from 1615-1868. (Edo is now Tokyo.) The earliest of these "Ukiyo-e" (literally, pictures of the floating — i.e. everyday — world) appeared in the mid-17th century. At first, the woodblocks were executed in black and white, with a bit of hand coloring added. Over the years, the form became increasingly subtle. Perspective appeared, as well as more elaborate color and design.

The pictures, which represent a turning away from the rigidly formal subjects of the aristocratic past, illustrate the beauty in the everyday passing scene, and celebrate a more pleasure-oriented attitude. Although appearing highly stylized to western eyes, these are a sort of Japanese version of the genre painting. Depicted are popular actors of the time — both on stage in formal guise and off stage, more informally. We see sumo wrestlers grunting and gouging, and people in the street going about their daily chores. Favorite subjects were the courtesans of the Yoshiwara (red light) district. Beautifully garbed, they were the fashion-setters of their day.

Utamaro, one of the masters of the woodcut, specialized in painting these ladies of the night, and like Toulouse-Lautrec and Degas, who were greatly influenced by these prints, spent much of his time with them. (The debt owed to the Japanese printmakers by 19th-century French artists is well known, but it was surprising to recognize so many similarities in the works of other more recent artists, most notably Al Hershfeld's theatre caricatures.)

Several different formats were favored by these artists. The horizontal scroll often illustrated a continuing narrative. One of these depicts a group of naked "river waders" whose task it is to transport a party of nobility across a stream. Some of the noble "passengers," all heavily garbed and elaborately coiffed, are being pulled over the water on wooden platforms, while others cling precariously on the shoulders of the lowly serfs. The facial expressions of the toilers engaged in this heroic effort are priceless.

The double-spread book page was another popular form. Especially charming is an illustration of children who have rolled up a huge snowball as well as sculpting, also out of snow, a Chinese dog the size of a small horse.

Other forms included the Surimono-e, small greeting card prints, and the tall, narrow format known as "pillar" prints which were designed to cover the pillars in a Japanese house.

One very popular segment of the Japanese woodcut of this era was known as Shunga-e, the erotic print. Of this form the exhibition presents just one titillating example. The placard explains: "Pornography flourished in the print and book trade of early 19th-century Edo under its dissolute Shogunate Ienari (1773-1837) and his corrupt officials." The print on display is the first of a Shunga series. Both man and woman are heavily draped. The placard continues: "Kimonos are dropped in the next print to reveal full frontal nudity, with nothing left to the imagination." Alas, for the voyeuristic viewer, everything is left to the imagination.

Most of the great masters of the form, both early and late, are represented. Here are the classic land and cityscape prints of Hiroshige, a few of the hundreds of studies of Mt. Fuji created by Hokusai (like Monet, he painted series of the same subject in various guises), exquisite Utamaro's, including an unusual page from a natural history work. The double spread is executed in soft greens and pale tans. Silver printing simulates the opalescence of shells, while scattered brass dust suggests beach sand. A delicate pillar print by Hokusai shows a pearl diver rising to the surface, her hair streaming out behind, and her prize clutched in an upraised hand.

ONE-WOMAN SHOW: "In the Water," an exhibition by Nancy Staub Laughlin at ETS through June 30, explores the relationships of colorful shapes.

If you ride the elevator up to the gallery, on the second floor of Firestone Library, do walk back down so as not to miss the prints and delicate paper stencils in the hallway and on the stair landing. There's a magnificent six-panel screen and woodblock book illustration from the 11th-century classic Tale of Genji, which one critic aptly described as a "labyrinthine novel worthy of Proust." The only disappointment to this otherwise first-rate show is that there is no catalog. Hopefully, one is in the works.

One Woman Show. "In the Water" is the title of Nancy Staub Laughlin's one-woman show at ETS' Conant Hall gallery.

According to the artist, who admits to a "long-time fascination with the random beauty of colorful objects submerged in shimmering pools," her general focus is on "the bold distortions of free-floating, many hued shapes, which are enhanced by the rippling of water and sunbeams."

Basic subject matter is pools and the things (colorfully striped plastic things such as life rings) that float in them. Sometimes the objects are stretched almost to the point of pure abstraction — the white diving board, a step ladder, the sides of the pool, the smoky blue shadows — are severe geometric counterpoints to the ribbons of alternating colors.

These gaily colored pastels and collages emit a cheerful, summery quality that would do a lot to brighten a drab day.

The exhibit will run through June 30.

Exhibits

A retrospective exhibition of paintings by Werner Groshans will open at the New Jersey State Museum on June 20, and run through August 9.

The artist was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1927. He was a member of the National Academy and a participant in the WPA Easel Project in Newark during the Depression. His works are in several public and private collections.

"Porcelain Landscapes: Ceramics by Ann Tsubota" will be exhibited June 13 through August 2 at the New Jersey State Museum. The show, part of the New Jersey Artist Series, contains landscape wall pieces and vases made from multi-fired porcelain.

Ms. Tsubota received a craft fellowship from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts in 1983-84, and is a juried member of New Jersey Designer Craftsmen, Inc.

As its last show of the 1986-1987 gallery season, the Hopewell Frame Shop, Hopewell, is presenting paintings by Pat Tisa Penza. The exhibit will run through the first week of July. Ms. Penza is noted for her bold use of form and color.

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday, 9 to 4, and Saturday, 9 to 1.

A display of pastel paintings of Victorian children, by Lee Stang Harr, will be on display at the Back Door Gallery, Princeton Shopping Center, from June 5-30. An artist's reception will be held Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 at the gallery.

Ms. Harr is a portrait instructor at the Princeton Art Association and teaches privately in her Cranbury studio.

"Wildlife & Budden" is the title of the Michael Budden exhibit of recent paintings, lithographs and prints on display at the Lawrence Gallery, Lawrence Center, from June 6-30.

Mr. Budden, of Roebling, was recently selected as the New Jersey Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year for 1987. He also placed in the top 40 in the Federal Duck Stamp competition for 1986-87, and has received 35 awards in the highly specialized field of wildlife art.

Nightly- DESPERATELY SEEKING 7:30
SOMETHING WILD 9:15

DESPERATELY SEEKING SUSAN

SUSAN is a New Wave fairy tale which reveals in unlikelihood and is not afraid to take its inspiration from a host of other sources. Written by Elia Barish and directed by new-comer Susan Seidelman, it's a terrifically general New York City larceny in which the lives of two very different young women become tangled in a nylon web of lies, truths and cross purposes. The larceny involves, among other unlikely things, a gipsy who killed in Atlantic City a pair of stolen Egyptian earrings, a professional hit man, amnesia, mistaken identity, a handsome young projectionist (Adam Quen) and a soberly commonplace magician. The two women are Rosalinda Aquilante as Roberta, a pampered Fort Lee N.J. pop star, married to a jazzcat salesman and pop star Madonna in her first major film role, as Susan, one of society's most winning barmaids, who sleeps around as much for convenience as for pleasure. Through a succession of implausible coincidences, Roberta starts living a reasonable facsimile of Susan's wayward life—and that's just the beginning. Seidelman's pinch-plate talent is for bringing cockeyed characters to life with great good humor and no condescension, and she's as wicked about life in the new bohemia 15 in the new suburbia. Like the new bohemia 15 comedies of yesterday, Desperately Seeking Susan places critically probable people in a highly improbable situation and expects that they consult their own society tested inner logic to find a way out. How nice to find a farcical fizz to a movie bursting with youthful high spirits, yet one that still treats you as a functioning adult. USA, 1985, 104 minutes. PG.

SOMETHING WILD

was one of 1986's best film comedies, but most people missed it. It's the work of Jonathan Demme, and like his previous hits Melvin & Howard and Harold and Maude, it's a movie that only starts as a comedy. Then slips into melodrama and winds up as something of a romantic dream. Jeff Daniels (Purple Rose of Cairo) plays a start-acced businessman whose only brush with crime—failing to pay his lunch tab—captures the attention of unwhipped kook Melanie Griffith, who has identified Daniels as a kindred spirit, and who kidnaps him to be her escort at her high school reunion. All goes well until her real husband (Ray Liotta), a psychotic, small-town hood, turns up at the same reunion. What follows is a kind of provincial version of Griffin Dunne's nightmare in After Hours. Demme is a master at finding the beauty in the ordinary, and Something Wild is really surreal, it breaks conventions and turns out a scary slapstick thriller. Demme's best films all speak eloquently of the dislocation in American life. There are no villains, just people striving to belong in trying to say something funny and disturbing about the way we live, he takes a risk in Something Wild, one we should be willing to take with him. USA, 1986, 114 minutes. R.

Nightly- DRAUGHTSMAN 7:30

THE 4TH MAN 9:30

THE DRAUGHTSMAN'S CONTRACT

restoration comedy-mystery—an enigmatic tale of manners and murder set in a great English country house in 1694. The landowner Mr. Herbert, invites Mr. Neville, an aspiring draftsman (Anthony Higgins), to his estate, where he enters into a strange contract with the owner's son for twelve sexual favors in return for twelve architectural drawings in return for twelve sexual favors from Mrs. Herbert and her daughter. When not sharing their carnal pleasures, the draftsman produces sketches that are precise, refined and troubling—for in them are tantalizing visual hints of a murder. Drawn deeper and deeper into the affairs of the Herberts and their relations, Mr. Neville finds his artistic and amateur laborer, leading him into a nest of evil that threatens his very life. This is a movie full of ideas, but one that turns these ideas into flesh was the first Hollywood film by yet another of Australias bright new directors, Peter Weir (The Last Wave, Gallipoli). The setting is Indonesia in 1965, as the Sukarno government stumbles towards a coup that will eventually end its reign. Mel Gibson plays an ambitious Australian journalist covering the scene who is put to make a name for himself by exploring the situation. He meets and falls in love with Squirey Weaver, whose mysterious position in the British Embassy gives her access to secret information she passes on to Gibson, and which he uses as the starting point for a big story. More than a little in love with both of them is Billy Kwan (Linda Hunt), a half-Chinese, half-Aussie model photographer who becomes the reporter's partner, philosophical tour guide, and matchmaker. Living Dangerously has all the ingredients of a Conrad novel, but it is no mere treatise on the evils of imperialism. With a visual turmoil and rhythm that recalls the work of Sir Carol Reed (The Third Man), Weir blends elements of political intrigue, romantic passion, and humanitarian principle to create a rich, absorbing entertainment. USA, 1982, 115 minutes. PG.

THE YEAR OF LIVING DANGEROUSLY

LA DOLCE VITA

was a sensation in its time, The Last Tango in Paris of 1960. Fellini presents a savage, nihilist vision of modern Rome—cold, decadent, cruel and dehumanizing. It is a movie geared to destroy all vestiges of human sensitivity or open, honest communication between individuals. The film opens with the statue of Christ over the city, towing the statue of Christ over the city, and an ideal out of reach. The ubiquitous flashbulb-popping paparazzi swarm to scenes of horror and agony like parasitic scavengers, pointing from one photograph to the next. The film's central figure is Marcello (Marcello Mastroianni), a jaded journalist on an odyssey in search of himself and the decadent beauties of Rome's upper classes. The girls simply through this landscape, hoping to find some kind of inner enrichment, but disinclined to give of himself to the people who might provide it. Each episode dramatizes both Marcello's lack of love or conviction and the abrogation of responsibility by an important institution or class of people. A work of almost suffocating richness, La Dolce Vita has lost none of its power since its first release more than 25 years ago and remains his undisputed masterpiece. With Vivienne Furueaux. Anouk Aimee and Anita Ekberg. Italy, 1961, 160 minutes.

Nightly- BLUE VELVET 7:30

was not only the must-see movie of 1986, but one of those rare must-see again movies. Like Last Tango in Paris, which will be attacked, argued about and even cherished for years to come. Director David Lynch (Frasierhead, Dune) portrays a strange, repellent and seductive world of power, plays in which everybody is somebody's victim. The setting is the fictional town of Lumberton, an archetypal small, sleepy city in an indefinite level. Jeffrey (Kyle MacLachlan) discovers a severed ear, takes it to a detective, and becomes consumed in a mystery that will lead him into a violent and erotic roller world. Admired by Sandy, the detective's sweet, blond daughter (Laura Dern), Jeffrey races things to Dorothy (Isabella Rossellini), a torch singer who becomes Sandy's erotic opposite in her imagination. Following Dorothy home to her apartment, Jeffrey is drawn into voyeurism, sadomasochism and the unexplored dark side of his own character. USA, 1986, 117 minutes.

SAT. & SUN., July 11-12
Nightly- KISS OF SPIDER WOMAN 7:30
BIRDY 9:30

KISS OF THE SPIDER WOMAN

is the work of Hector Babenco, who has folded his social concerns (evidenced in his earlier Pravda) into a more complex and deliberately stylized film in which politics are juxtaposed with the magic of the movies. In a prison cell somewhere in Latin America, two very different men and their wives linked together. Molina (William Hurt), an effeminate homosexual, apolitical, incurably and irresponsibly romantic, and Valentin (Paul Jullia), a political activist, macho, puritanical, homophobic. From these unlikely ingredients, Babenco fashions a love story which redefines conventional notions of masculinity and also provides an internal commentary on the movies, function as escapist entertainment. To make their hell more bearable, Molina regales his cellmate with purple passages from old romantic films and Nazi melodramas, dripping with glamour, romance and intrigue. This film-within-the-film (starring the Brazilian bombshell Sonia Braga as the sultry heroine) borrows a playful and provocative counterpoint to the main narrative. Kiss of the Spider Woman Plugs novel, Mass of the Spider Woman demonstrates that entertainment can co-exist with undistorted political content and formal adventurousness. From its droil, playful opening to its transcendence, it has the mark of greatness ever made a movie about politics. Berkeley ever! Birdy never! USA, 1985, 119 minutes. R.

BIRDY

is a wonderful movie that somehow slipped through the net. Based on William Wharton's 1978 novel, it's the story of two working-class kids from South Philly, one of whom (Matthew Modine) wants to be a bird. But the only real flying he does is in a helicopter in Vietnam, where he's injured and brought back to the states in an apparent caltonic state. His teenage buddy Al (Nicholas Cage) is brought in by the Army to help, and the entire film is told in a series of flashbacks as he tries to get Birdy back to reality without revealing his bird obsession to the bull-headed Army brass. Modine's performance is one of sheer bravura—just over the top, but under control. He collects canaries, turns his room into an aviary, and even makes bird suits for himself. Director Alan Parker makes us feel the power and pathos of his obsession, as well as the friendship between Birdy and Al, which is as sweet and crazy as any the movies have ever shown us. Parker's movie does what Birdy himself can never quite manage: it defies convention and category, and gets away with it. Why did it miss? Who knows, but here's your chance. USA, 1984, 122 minutes. R.

WED. thru FRI., July 15-17
Nightly- MEN 7:30
SUGARBABY 9:15

MEN

is a kind of updating on The God Couple by West Germany's Doris Dörrie, who knows that men are never more foolish than when they take themselves seriously and their women frivolously. When the handsome, self-centered Julius (Heiner Lauterbach), a Munich advertising executive, discovers that his wife has been having an affair with the scruffy Stehan (Uwe Ochsenknecht), a long-haired Bohemian, he wants to know what Stehan's attraction is, so he assumes a false name and moves in with him. The result is a romp over the subjects of sexual competition, male bonding and boyish bickering. Julius and Stehan get into wrestling matches, and slanging matches, domestic spats and moments of ambiguous affection. But the two central figures maintain a careful balance just this side of slapstick as they carry on like the kids they would like to be, or thought they were in the 60s. They are often ridiculous, but never less than human. And while feminist impulses may have spurred the creation of Men, Dörrie hasn't come up with the usual feminist conclusions. Her movie

WED. thru FRI., July 22-24
Nightly- SMALL CHANGE 7:30

SMALL CHANGE

For Francois Truffaut, children are a sacred trust, and he has always shared special communion with them. (from Antoine Doinel) (The 400 Blows) to The Wild Child in this, his 15th film, he rediscovers them, their lost language intact, and almost becomes an accomplice in their youth. The result is a marvelously funny and wise recreation of childhood which is never solemn and never sentimental. There is little plot, per se, simply a series of vignettes and incidents involving a group of French children (aged two weeks to about 14 years) in the town of Thiers. Truffaut's camera ambles through their lives, observing them at school and at home, sneaking into the movies, making do on a Saturday morning. Although it doesn't look like it, Small Change is fiction, and the wonder is how Truffaut got the performances he does with such a lack of self-consciousness and cynicism. This is a film by a man who works from the heart, without losing his head, and who retains the grace and vulnerability of childhood. Small Change is for those of us who have been or who still are children—which means just about everybody. France, 1976, 104 minutes.

28 UP is one of the most riveting pieces of sociological cinema ever made. Made with lunacy and extreme moving, and even more remarkably, comparatively optimistic about the human condition. Take a group of seven-year-old English children from a variety of economic and social backgrounds and watch them grow from childhood to adolescence to young adulthood. Director Michael Apted (Cool, Miner's Daughter) worked as an assistant on the first film, made in 1963 when the kids were seven, and since that time, they have been revisited every seven years to check on how their lives, as lived, have matched the dreams they had as children. 28 UP draws on all four sets of interviews, and the juxtaposition of the buoyant children with their sulken, troubled or complacent future selves makes a bittersweet portrait of growing up. Even at its most matter of fact, 28 UP speaks volumes about the exuberance of childhood, the edginess and uncertainty of adolescence, the sweeping expectations of early adulthood, and the compromises that inevitably come later. The result is more engrossing than any fiction, and as suspenseful as any drama. Dickens would have loved it. England, 1985, 133 minutes.

Nightly- LAST TANGO IN PARIS 7:15
CHOOSE ME 9:30

LAST TANGO IN PARIS

remains the most powerfully erotic and sexually liberalizing movie of our time. Bernardo Bertolucci's employment of sex combined with passion and emotional violence was a real cinematic breakthrough of the 70s. Marlon Brando plays a middle-aged American widower living in Paris who, in despair, sets up an apartment with an anonymous young girl (Miaa Schneid) for sessions from the core of the night, during which she lets him know that she still runs in conventional lines, are fertilized, turnous celebrations of the ecstasies and imitations on sexual passion. Both Bertolucci and the Brando dare to pull out all the stops, and the result is shocks.

SAT. & SUN., Aug. 1-2
Nightly- MENAGE 7:30
ENTRE NOUS 9:00

MENAGE

is the latest from Bertrand Blier (Going Places, Get Out Your Handkerchiefs) who revels in treating romantic obsession as a frolic to the death. This ferocious, black comedy of sexuality is a bizarre and hilarious variation on the romantic triangle which puts its characters through the kinds of kaleidoscopic changes one might associate with a sexual stereotyping, and lings them variously into a series of comic variations that become wider and wider. The three are a miserable married couple who are broke and fed up with each other when they meet Bob (Gerard Depardieu), a big, rishish hiel who literally storms his way into their lives. Bob takes Monique (Mou-Mou) to bed, but he's really after Antoine (Michel Blanc), and he woos the lady, mouly fellow tirelessly. The two eventually become lovers, but that's only the beginning. Menage is a bulldozing film of exhilarating wit and cynicism, with raw, bustling and lyrical dialogue. Topping absurdity with outrage, and outrage with obsession, it moves ahead like an express train. It almost threatens to explode from the exhaustion of possibilities, and that it doesn't is due largely to the genius of its cast, and to the bold, cartoonish craziness with which Blier leaps from point to point. France, 1986, 81 minutes.

ENTRE NOUS

is a bittersweet domestic epic of friendship in 50's France that redeclines feminism with femininity in 1952 Lyons, Lens (Isabelle Huppert) thrives as the pretty bourgeois wife of a garage owner (Guy Marchand) and the mother of two daughters. At her children's school, she meets Madeleine (Mou-Mou), a sculptor who lost her first husband in World War II and has mistakenly married a small-time actor and part-time hustler (Jean-Pierre Baer). As the two women share a succession of everyday dramas and domestic obligations, they seal a friendship that strains to escape the emotional claustrophobia of home and family, and to the chagrin and anger of their husbands, they find that ecstatic escape in each others' soul. Much of Entre Nous plays as delicate social comedy, but it's also a powerful love story, erotically charged but ambiguous as to the exact nature of their physical relationship. Under-director Diane Kurys (Pépé le poutou) admits the bravery of these women, but she's not blind to their selfishness and snobbery, and she deals fairly with the men as well. She is able to evoke the mood and mindset of the 50's without drooping feminist hindsight. This is not a movie about blame, but one that's wise enough to know that personal freedom doesn't come cheaply. France, 1983, 110 minutes.

A PASSAGE TO INDIA

was David Lean's first film in 14 years, and signified his return to a style of filmmaking now all but vanished: a style of which he was the undisputed master for more than two decades (Lawrence of Arabia, Dr. Zhivago, Bridge on the River Kwai). His adaptation of the novel by E. M. Forster (yes, the same author who gave us Room With a View) is full of his breath-taking, trademark vistas. But although his physical scale and set against a tumultuous Indian background, Passage is also intimate, funny and moving. Set in the lush city of Chandragore in the 1920's, it's essentially a story of what can happen as a result of a succession of wrong-headed decisions and dreadful misunderstandings, of trust either given too easily or withheld too long. Dame Peggy Ashcroft is Mrs. Moore, come to India with her son's lancee Adela, where she is appalled at the high-handed manner of her colonialism. Judy Davis (My Brilliant Career) is the bride-to-be, plan, honest, sexually repressed, and she and her mother set out to attempt to break the invisible rail-barrier. The pivotal incident of both book and movie is when the Muslim Dr. Aziz (Victor Banerjee) invites the ladies on an outing to the remote Marabar Caves. The disastrous consequences of this expedition set up everything which comes after, including an uproarious courtroom drama in which Aziz is accused of the rape of the once-dazzling, now nearly catatonic Adela. Passage is a rich tapestry about the clash between Anglo and Indian cultures, not just as a colorful and exotic setting, but as a decisive force in shaping the story he is telling—almost as if in a chapter. This is a film about which it can truly be said, "They don't make em like this any more." England/USA, 1984, 160 minutes. PG.

Nightly- PAULINE AT THE BEACH 7:30
SUMMER 9:15

PAULINE AT THE BEACH

is perhaps Eric Rohmer's most accessible film yet, one in which he addresses himself to the romantic dilemmas that afflict and preoccupy us all. On the coast of Normandy in late summer, six civilized people, ranging in age from 15 to 40, compete in a low-key traham of sailing, wind-surfing, and sexual deception, each working subtly—and at cross purposes—to enlighten someone else about the true nature of love. What follows is an erotic round that can only lead to bruised feelings, concealed truths, self-deceptions and those wonderful Rohmer insights into the mechanisms of mind and heart. Pauline is not a farce, but it has many farcical elements as its protagonists meet, eat, drink, dance, swim, make love, and of course, talk—although the film's pleasure comes not from its characters' garrulousness, but from their eloquent body language. As chatty and casual as good gossip, this is a movie that holds its intellectual edginess even as the sensual atmosphere thickens and everyone heads off to bed. Rohmer makes magic out of middle-class mundaneness, and Pauline has the tangled moral complexity and perversity of the itself. France, 1983, 94 minutes. R.

SUMMER

is Eric Rohmer's latest, and like so many of his films, it is profound while also being sweet, funny, charming and even haunting. Pauline (Marie Riviere) is a Paris secretary whose summer vacation plans are upset when her girlfriend pulls out on their vacation. A love affair has wilted, her job is a dead end, and here it is July and she's high and dry. Friends offer help, but she mopes. Cherbourg, Biarritz, the Alps, all beckon, but she sniffs, people she meets try to make her laugh, but she scoffs. Trying to explain herself, Delphine has the infuriating stubbornness of the lonely—a million reasons not to do any, but she also gets under your skin. And little by little, Rohmer takes us inside this young woman until we come to realize that she is suffering from true anguish of the heart. His movie is a clarity, but finally illuminating and moving exploration of loneliness as a spiritual condition. Summer is a film that fires your passion, but it also provokes fascination. Rohmer has a genius for conveying the poetry of the mundane, and here he converts a working girl's search for a vacation into a spiritual odyssey. France, 1986, 98 minutes. R.

TRUE STORIES

is a jubilant extension of the world view of the remarkable genius of David Byrne, the singer, songwriter and vision-ary beyond the rock band, Talking Heads. Like David Letterman, he is fascinated by the truly and seemingly banal, and his point of view is that the real world can be seen sharp when its simplest absurdities are regarded with naive fascination. Byrne's surreal, comic travelogue of three days in the lives of some people in Virgil, Texas has plenty of surprises in store. Here is life in the middle-class, small-town South as it might be viewed by a sympathetic viewer from outer space—or by Byrne himself. In this case, who functions as the film's irreverent and straightforward narrator. Byrne really wants us to observe the eccentric rhythms of people's minds and movements—and how strange and wonderful these creatures are! The events through which his characters wander include a fashion show featuring Astorist suits for the entire family, and a talent contest in which the denizens of Virgil leap to the stage one at a time in 15-second segments to lip-synch segments from the wonderful New Talking Heads song Wild, Wild Life. Byrne gives all his performers plenty of room to expand their characters from stereotypes into the deft cartoonery of a modern Preston Sturges stock company. It's hard not to have fun watching True Stories, and it's also gorgeous to look at—all in all, a triumph of craft and audacity for a movie feature film director. USA, 1986, 111 minutes. R.

HOME OF THE BRAVE

is the first feature film by Laurie Anderson, the first performance artist to gain widespread critical and public recognition. Part composer, part stand-up comic, she blends sounds, vocal stories, gags, dreams, slides, films and evocatively textured, elusive music into a multi-media presentation which intrigue, challenge and entertain. Home of the Brave is a blend of film, animation, stories and electronic gadgetry.

BREAD AND CHOCOLATE

proved to be the biggest foreign film box office success since Cousin, Cousine, a record that stood until La Cage aux Folles. Made in 1974 by director Franco Brusati, a witty, compassionate and bittersweet sexual comedy, whose themes include the clash of antipathetic cultures, the agony of the outsider, waiting in, and the ordeal of assimilation. Nino Manfredi plays an impoverished waiter from southern Italy trying to squeeze out a meagre living in Switzerland, a land of opportunity that doesn't exactly welcome him. Nino is a misfit in a world of prosperity, and the film follows him from one unlikely break to another. As his mishaps grow increasingly degrading, and his sniffs lower and lower into the economic and social depths, he becomes a kind of comic Everyman, caught between the person he no longer chooses to be, and the dream he doesn't fit—eternally rejected, yet eternally hopeful. Manfredi is no Chaplin, and Brusati tends to patronize Nino, keeping him as an object of our condescension. But he does know how to blend commentary with funny situations, and deliver a caustic critique of two national temperaments. With Anna Karina. Italy, 1974, 117 minutes.

LOCAL HERO

is the work of Scott Director Bill Forsythe in which Peter Riegert plays Macbride, the front man for a Texas oil magnate (Burt Lancaster), who is dispatched to the tiny Scottish fishing village of Fetters to sweet-talk its residents into selling the drilling rights to their land for an oil refinery. Sound familiar? But wait—these villagers are eager to sell, instead, Fethness casts its spell (like Brigadoon) over Macbride, and it is the outsider, succumbing to its charm, who ends up denuding the village against everyone's greedy impulses. Local Hero is an irresistible benevolent tale about a happy interlude of cultural shock. Forsythe has a flair for understatement—the tellingly inconspicuous detail—and for eccentric sidekicks and digressions. He impresses Forsythe's computer wizard in the hypnotic rhythm of life in a remote corner of the world, and the result is a genuine fairy tale of a movie. It's funny, yes, but with the kind of humor that induces chuckles, not belly laughs. And once you adjust to its quiet, lyrical point of view, you find that the film's surprisingly complex moods linger with a bittersweet afterglow. Scotland, 1982, 110 minutes. PG.

BRAZIL

is a superb example of the power of comedy to underscore serious ideas, even solemn ones. This witty observed vision of an extremely bleak future is the work of Terry Gilliam, best known on these shores, as the longtime animator for the Monty Python TV series. Which is probably why it is not so surprising that his ambitious visual style combines grim, overpowering architecture with clever throwaway touches. Brazil is named not for the country, but for the 30's popular song, which floats through the film as a kind of refrain. The plot, if you want to call it that, revolves largely as an excuse for Gilliam to lead us into various corners of his Orwellian world. His answer to Winston Smith is Sam Lowry (Jonathan Pryce), a gray-suited bureaucrat who has a forbidden love, a lively fantasy life, and a sociable mother who arranges a promotion for him into an office so small that he has only half a desk, and half a poster, staring both with the bureaucratic next door. This change propels Sam into a romance with a woman (Kim Greist) who may be a terrorist and into a series of nightmares. The excellent supporting cast includes Robert De Niro as a combination repairman-commando, Bob (Mona Tusi) Hoskins, and Michael Palin (for Monty Python fame). England, 1985, 131 minutes.

BLADE RUNNER

was 1982's "super design" movie which has since become a cult classic. Director Ridley (Arius) Scott and his collaborators have created a futuristic world which is Babel and Babylon, the South Bronx and Brasilia, a crust of slums above which soar the towers of the ultimate consumer society. This anti-paradise is populated by replicants, artificial humans but seemingly real people who have been designed and manufactured by genetic engineers to serve as workers and warriors. Blade Runner is as "blade runner" a detective assigned to track down four dangerous replicants who have escaped their maker's control. As a kind of space-age Philip Marlowe, Ford is re-

Home-Style Cooking Highlights Main Street

Wonderful fragrances float through the air as you step inside Main Street in Kingston. It could be the tasty soup of the day, freshly baked muffins just out of the oven or Main Street's own deliciously brewed coffee — or it might be an enticing blend of all of these. If you weren't hungry when you went in, these irresistible aromas guarantee that you soon will be.

Opened in the fall of 1984 at 56 Main Street in Kingston, the food boutique, with its emphasis on home-cooking, soon became very popular with a variety of customers. As owner Sue Simpkins recalls, "I felt that for people who enjoy home-style, good cooking, there was really no place to get it. You either have to prepare it yourself, which takes time, or go out to lunch, which can be costly. We don't offer fancy food. We're not gourmet — we're more Monday through Thursday — but we have a total concentration on quality, and everything is fresh, starting from scratch. We cook our own turkeys and meat and make all our own bread and pastries."

Main Street is Mrs. Simpkins' first venture into the food business. "Actually, I had been in fashion all my life," she observes. "Food and cooking was always an avocation. Although I did spend some time consulting in the food industry in New York.

"But then this spot became available, and it was perfect. It's a 150-year-old building, and it is an excellent location — one mile to Rt. 1 to the corporate center, two miles into Princeton and close to Rt. 206. It is an enormous step to take — to open your own business — but I was enthusiastic.

"Corporate catering was really how we started," she continues. "I did not anticipate that we'd have such a big walk-in business. But now, the walk-in trade is more than 50% of the business. Both take-out and sit-down. It's good to come in for a quick cup of coffee or soup and a sandwich, sort of eating on the run. We have stools inside, and now in our addition, The Pantry at Main Street, there are two tables, and on nice days, people like to sit outside on the brick patio.

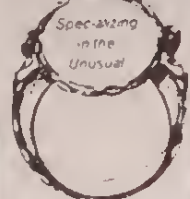

"Everyone who comes in seems to feel very comfortable," she adds. "We try to offer a personalized feeling here. Our staff is so willing to take time to help each customer. And our clientele is wonderful — everyone from construction workers and truck drivers to executives and bankers. We open at 7:30, and even then we do a very spritely business. Lots of people come in for coffee and breakfast pastries."

Corporate caterers. Catering, especially corporate catering, is a major focus of Main Street's business, and several corporations have standing orders. Breakfast meetings, luncheons and special occasions all are a big part of the catering operation, and Mrs. Simpkins makes a point of presentation. "We send everything out in baskets and howls. Everything is ready to go and ready to serve. We try to make it very appetizing. We really pride ourselves on our presentation. Customers can be proud to serve the food in the containers we send."

She adds that Main Street also does individual catering, "especially for those who like to emphasize the personal touch. We do more informal affairs, small dinners, etc., rather than formal occasions, like weddings. Of course, the earlier you order, the better the chances of a wider selection."

Other specialties of Main Street are its box lunches and "Little Red Riding Hood" baskets. The box lunches, in special Main Street boxes, are suitable for picnics or other informal outings, and the baskets are becoming popular for a variety of occasions and gifts, such as "Get Well," "Welcome Home," "Welcome to the Neighborhood" and "Bon Voyage."

Main Street has just opened an addition, The Pantry at Main Street, and Mrs. Simpkins says, "We are still adding the finishing touches. This is our self-service area where customers can choose a frozen entree such as eggplant parmigiana, lasagne or chicken with wild rice and cherries. Everything here is fresh. We package and freeze it so that people can get what they want and have a quick home-cooked meal. For example, you could pick up a half pound of pasta, marinara sauce and spinach salad and have a delicious quick supper." Also, she adds, "The Pantry is the place you will find Main Street's own labels — our own prepared salad dressings, our own sauces, etc."

Mrs. Simpkins emphasizes that everything is made fresh each day, and "The salads are often made twice a day. Also, we'll vary the type of salad for the season. Laurie, the salad chef, comes up with a lot of new ideas, as well as the traditional salads."

Other seasonal changes occur, such as offering one hot soup each day in summer and two in winter, but Mrs. Simpkins notes that when she considered eliminating chili for the summer months, customer demand brought it back!

Recipes Her Own. Many of the Main Street recipes are Mrs. Simpkins' own, but she admits she has little time for cooking anymore. Running the HYDROPONIC HORTICULTURE: "Basically, it is plants without soil. It's really a system. A clay aggregate of pebbles is used instead of soil, and this provides a support system for the plants." business is a full-time operation. "I have a wonderful staff, she says. "Nancy, the head chef is very experienced in country cooking, and our baker makes a variety of delicious desserts and breads, including old-fashioned cinnamon buns, four varieties of muffins, two kinds of scones each day, as well as croissant and danish. I'm fortunate to be able to rely on their expertise."

Main Street carries a few items not made there, such as homemade Harbor Sweets chocolates, American Spoon Foods condiments and preserves and the Hunter Horn Plantation ham from Savannah. "Everything we carry is exclusive to us," points out Mrs. Simpkins.

"We also have a small collection of what we consider outstanding Junior League cookbooks — a cross section of the country's cooking from all different regions. And by mid-June, we will be offering the Main Street Fresh Home Cooking, Recipe and Home Entertaining Guide. It has two sections — our own recipes and the home entertainment guide with tips for party planning, table settings, etc."

Customers seem to delight in just about everything on the menu at Main Street, but some special favorites include the variety of quiches, the chicken pot pie, lasagne, pasta and pasta sauces and the brownies and lemon squares.

Among the other tempting choices are tomato, bean fennel soup, broccoli cheddar quiche, roast beef, turkey and meatloaf sandwiches, vegetable lasagne, oven-baked parmesan chicken, filet mignon, pesto piazza, spinach ricotta turnovers, potato, fruit, Greek and chicken and broccoli salads, homemade garlic bread, watercress dip, garlic herb butter, goat cheese spread and for dessert, apple crisp, chocolate mousse, apple pie, carrot cake, cheese cake cup cakes and the Cookie Jar Collection cookies.

Prices vary at Main Street. Sandwiches — made to order on dark pumpernickel, whole wheat or white rolls — are $4.25, soups, including bread stick, are $2.75, and desserts range from 50 cents to $2.25. Single-serving entrees are $3.25 and up, depending on weight, quiches are $2.95 and a bag of Cookie Jar Collection cookies is $2.50. Box lunches start at $7.50, and catering prices cover a wide range.

Main Street is open for breakfast, lunch and dinner, and Mrs. Simpkins says that the public's reaction has made all the hard work worthwhile. "Knowing we are satisfying our clients, and that they are enjoying good food, tasty food is really a pleasure. So is the people contact. And it is very satisfying when they call to say they have enjoyed something. We even hear from people who have moved away."

Main Street is open Monday-Friday 7:30 to 7 and 8:30 to 3 on Saturday.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

LIVING TREES NEED LOVING CARE

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Trees are living, growing things with health care needs. Yet, some property owners treat their trees with very little respect.

While plants may not be able to verbalize their needs, they do give off signs that let you know of their needs. Some may be apparent to the untrained eye, but others can be seen only by a consulting arborist or other tree health professional. For example, one of the first clues of a tree's problems is the withering or yellowing of leaves. Finding the cause may require a professional.

The diagnosis for withering leaves may be as simple as summer stress, which would require water or liquid fertilization. Or, if the dying leaves are concentrated on one side, it may be girdling roots strangling the life out of the tree.

In the example cited above, watering may sound trivial, but lack of water could threaten the life of the tree. If leaves are withering all over the tree, and it hasn't rained lately, you should provide the necessary water. A tree needs an inch or two of water per week. But give it one or two good soakings — don't just sprinkle! If water runs off, make enough holes in the ground for it to penetrate into the root area. If the tree doesn't respond, its problems go deeper, and professional help is needed.

Fertilizer should be prescribed professionally, based on laboratory analysis of the soil deficiencies creating the need for fertilization. Girdling roots should be removed surgically and the tree fertilized and watered.

We at WOODWINDS are members of the American Society of Consulting Arborists, the professional society dedicated to assuring that every living tree has an opportunity for professional, loving care. For more information about tree and shrub care, give us a call at 924-3500. We are glad to be of service!

in Europe in the 1940s (and known to the ancient Greeks), it is a system that can be used to grow plants, vegetables and herbs. A clay aggregate of pebbles provides a support system for the plants and because the stones hold moisture, watering is only needed once a month. In fact, there is a gauge in the plant container to indicate when watering should take place. Hydroponic plants last longer than soil plants if you follow the gauge indicator.

Arlene Macallister, owner of Creative Hydroponics in the Towne Center (behind Dunkin Donuts) on Rt. 206 in Hillsborough, adds that "There are 90% fewer problems with insects and soil diseases, they don't need transplanting into other pots, and you can even wash the plants with soap and water. There is also a 90% success rate when you transplant your soil plants into the hydroponic system. And, it's hyperallergenic. If you could never have plants before due to allergies, now you can."

"Any plant can work well in this way," she continues, "from orchids to ficus trees. Every plant loves the system. It just drinks when it needs it. Also, it is definitely the high tech, scientific way to grow plants, and they've experimented with it in space and will grow plants hydroponically in space stations. Disney World's Epcot Center has an exhibit of hydroponics called The Land."

Ms. Macallister became interested in the hydroponic system by chance 10 years ago. "I bought two plants in 1977," she recalls, "and I got very involved. I saw that I really didn't have to do anything to the plants, and that was great. It was a hobby that grew into something more. I started selling the plants in my home, but I needed more space as the business grew."

It was basically on-the-job training, but she also took design and architecture courses, and eight years ago, she set up her business in South Brunswick, then moved to the present Hillsborough location in 1985. Now customers come from all over the area, even from as far away as Fort Lee. "Most of my business is repeat," reports Ms. Macallister. "People come back to the store because the plant lives! The word-of-mouth has been great. People are often a little skeptical at first, but then many times they'll turn out to be my best customer. What happens is that customers will try a plant, and then they like it so much, they come back for more."

Low Light Trees. Ms. Macallister specializes in low light trees (those requiring a low amount of light), including Chinese evergreens, Janet Craig and corn plants. The shop also concentrates on plants for solar rooms, such as ficus and scheffelara, which need a lot of light.

"We have everything from three-inch plants to 10-foot trees," she says, "and one thing to stress is that we make a point of selling the right plants for the right lighting. In fact, if customers intend to buy a lot of plants, I'll go to their house for a first-hand look."

In addition, Ms. Macallister offers an interior design service for plants. "We're not just a plant shop," she explains. "we are a design store for plants. I provide a design service with floor plans both for offices and houses. We hope people decide what plants would go well with their decor, including the type of container, whether contemporary or country. When we put it all together it's like a piece of art. There is a wide market for this, and the design part of the business has really taken off."

She has been doing the design work for the past two years, and finds it "very creative. You try to see that the plants and pots blend together. We are very proud of the way we are able to do this, and that the customer response has been so positive. When we see how happy people are with what we've done, seeing the end result is very satisfying."

Ms. Macallister also carries a variety of containers, including "the finest brass from Holland, antique wicker and ceramic." Plants of all shapes and sizes are displayed on handsome antique pieces of furniture, as are a number of touch lamps with living plants in the base which are turned on and off by touching the leaves.

Creative Hydroponics is also an education center with information and books about hydroponics. "Most people still don't know much about hydroponics," reports Ms. Macallister. "I could tell you all day how great it is, but you really have to have one and see for yourself. But we always try to help and answer questions. Nobody leaves here without detailed instructions of how to take care of the plants."

"Really," she adds, "I'm not here just to sell someone a plant. What keeps me so excited about the business is people trying the system and then being so happy after they see how it works. In addition, I do programs for gardening and women's clubs and libraries."

Creative Hydroponics carries a variety of plants (including the very popular braided ficus tree) and containers at a range of prices. As Ms. Macallister says, "We have plants starting at $12 and going up to $200 for an eight- or nine-foot tree and every price in between. Containers start at $15. There is something here for everyone's price range."

She adds that "we deliver in the surrounding area, and we hope people will think of us for hospital calls — get well, anniversary or birthday gifts. It's perfect for an easy-care gift. Also, this would be a unique Father's Day present. Something different for Dad — for his office or study."

Abbot L. Moffat

sult, Roosevelt played them. And each time, they [the Old Guard] brought the Republicans to the wrong side of everything."

There was another political play by Roosevelt that still rankles. Mr. Moffat recommended, for several valid reasons, that New York State sell its half share of the Holland Tunnel. It did — to the Port Authority — and received $22 million.

"I assumed the money would go into capital improvement," said Mr. Moffat. "Instead, Mr. Roosevelt used it to cut the income tax in New York in the year he was running for president."

In the thirties, Mr. Moffat read a report by the state superintendent of public works suggesting that a new right of way be built through open country to Albany and Buffalo. Later, during the war, he started thinking about the unemployment that would follow the end of hostilities, and set up a commission to plan postwar projects.

"I became interested in the new road, but I was determined not to call it an expressway or superway," he said. "I wanted seven letters, but I didn't like the simplified spelling of thruway."

He and his wife, Marion, got into their car and drove for hours searching for a new name. But they finally admitted defeat. So thruway it was — and remains.

Mr. Moffat, as chairman of the state's Ways and Means committee, put the new road on the state map. "This made it legal," he said. "It was then just a matter of getting funds for it."

In 1943, Mr. Moffat retired from the Legislature and began a career with the State Department. "My brother died that year," he said, "and I thought it was more important to go to Washington."

He worked with Thomas Finletter during the war, and stayed on in the Department as chief of the Southeast Asia Division. Asked about later events in the region, he said, "I didn't think we would be quite as crazy as we were. I had tried to put pressure on the French to deal less severely in Indo-China."

Afterwards, he was deputy chief in Washington of the Marshall Plan; chief of the Burma Mission, and organizer and head of the Mission in Ghana. He also worked for a short period at the World Bank, where he was placed in charge of the Arab States. He still shakes his head about why a man with such wide experience in Southeast Asia was assigned to the Mideast.

Abbot and Marion Moffat began, in the early sixties, to look for a town in which they would live after retirement.

"We had three criteria," he said, "a place where we had friends; a community in its own right; and the illusion of country." They chose Princeton and, in December, 1966, moved into a house on Pheasant Hill Road.

When Mr. Moffat is not busy learning to use a new computer, working on the Borough's tangled traffic woes, or serving on the board of Friends of Open Space, he spends time putting together reminiscences for his family. "I have a closet filled with files, and I want to get rid of papers so that when we pass on, someone doesn't either chuck everything or feel they have to go through everything."

Abbot and Marion Moffat will celebrate their 61st wedding anniversary in July. The secret to a long and successful marriage? That's simple, says Mr. Moffat: "Find the right girl, and have her willing to accept you."

PHS Stickmen Surging With Two Playoff Wins

And then there were four. In one year's time the Princeton High boys lacrosse team has catapulted from the depths of winning just three games its previous two years, to the semi-final round of this year's state tournament. The driving force behind the dramatic turnaround has been Little Tiger coach Bobby Campbell and his achievement should not be overlooked when it comes to handing out the Coach of the Year Award.

After the final whistle had sounded in the heat of Saturday's battles, four teams remained: Westfield, Mountain Lakes, Bridgewater East and the lone team from this area — Princeton High.

The Little Tigers were scheduled to oppose Bridgewater East this week in one semi, while defending champion Westfield will oppose Mountain Lakes in the other. The survivors will clash Saturday at 2 at the Johnson Regional field for the state title.

PHS entertained Bridgewater in its opening game of the season, finally bowing, 8-2, after holding the favored visitors to a 2-2 tie at halftime. PHS, of course, is a much improved team from the one that faced Bridgewater April 1 and Campbell is looking forward to the return match. "If there is one team I want to meet down the line, it's Bridgewater," he acknowledged. Bridgewater had been undefeated at the time of the state tournament cutoff date and was seeded number one under the power rating system.

"It excites me to have this opportunity to prove to themselves and to the other teams just what they're made of," said Campbell of his squad.

THE JOY OF VICTORY: No, Princeton High lacrosse goalie Dan Brandt is not making a leaping save; he is leaping for joy at the sound of the final whistle in Little Tigers 9-2 win Saturday over Mendham. Aided by Brandt's 24 saves, PHS advanced to the state semi-finals.

The semi-finals is a highwater mark for the Little Tigers in state tournament play, although Campbell reported he believes PHS lost to Montclair in the semis when he was playing for coach Bill Cirullo in his senior year in 1979. Cirullo maintains the Little Tigers reached the semis twice; possibly three times, during his nine-year reign as coach.

"Thank You, Mr. Brandt. 'Thank God for Danny Brandt,' said Campbell, after PHS had upended Mendham, 9-2, Saturday on the losers' home field. "He was making some big saves; it could have been an entirely different picture in the second half. He had a great day."

Brandt turned aside 13 Mendham shots in the first half when

Lacrosse: Alums vs. Varsity

In a testing of the new by the old, a game between the Princeton High boys' lacrosse team and former PHS players will be held Sunday at the Princeton High School field.

All former Little Tiger lacrosse players who wish to participate should call Bill Cirullo, a former PHS lacrosse coach for nine years who has set up the contest with PHS coach Bob Campbell, at 924-7921 for more information and playing time.

PHS was struggling a bit and 11 more in the second half.

On offense, PHS was led by the two goals each of Dan Tomalin and Greg Savidge. Savidge adding a pair of assists. Paul Fisher, Jon Geller, Matt Savage, Thad Reynolds and Jacapo Mazzucato each added single goals in Princeton's 9-2 win.

Mazzucato's goal, Princeton's sixth, was "just beautiful," said Campbell. The junior defenseman, playing with a broken thumb, had passed off to Savidge, when he noticed his defender had left him, said Campbell. "Before he knew it, he had the ball back on his stick seven yards from the goal and he just drove it into the corner."

Although he didn't score, Jim Lavery contributed four assists during the victory, recorded, said Campbell, on the hottest May 30 ever. It was a 100 degrees on the field but, noted Campbell proudly, "it didn't slow us up."

We Just Exploded. If the weather was hot for the Mendham game, the PHS players were ever hotter earlier in the week when they routed Kinnelon, 17-6, in its opening tournament win. "We just exploded in that game," agreed Campbell. "Our shooting was on. Their players looked at us in awe."

The PHS players, he said, had been spectators at the NCAA college lacrosse semi-final game between Syracuse and Cornell and they tried to capture the flair of the college play in their victory over Kinnelon.

"Fisher, Lavery, McCray, Geller ... they were all shot well."

Fisher led the PHS assault with five goals. Geller added three and Savidge, Reynolds and Lavery two each. McCray, Savage and Mark Bienkowski scored single goals.

In other first-round games, Hunterdon Central edged Clark, 8-7; Bridgewater East topped Voorhees, 10-5; Mountain Lakes stopped North Hunterdon, 12-2; Westfield defeated Summit, 11-3; Mendham shaded Fair Lawn, 5-4; Columbia routed Bridgewater West, 13-3, and Montclair defeated Pingry, 9-4.

In quarterfinal results, Westfield defeated Hunterdon Central, 13-4; Mountain Lakes equalled Westfield's 17-1 record with a 17-8 victory over Montclair, and Bridgewater East ousted Columbia, 9-5.

PHS Girls Reach Semis In States in Lacrosse

The Princeton High girls lacrosse team has reached the semi-final round of the state lacrosse tournament.

An 8-6 victory over fourth-ranked Shawnee Friday, coupled with an 8-3 triumph earlier in the week over 12-seeded Chatham has propelled the fifth-ranked Little Tigers into a semi-final match with top-seeded Moorestown.

PHS was scheduled to oppose Moorestown this week at the Here's an amazing baseball fact ... A major league team once drew fewer fans during a whole season, than other teams have drawn in one day! ... When the St. Louis Browns played in the American League in 1935 they, unbelievably, drew a total of only 80,922 at home ALL YEAR while, for instance, on one day in 1954, the Cleveland Indians drew 84,587 for a game against the Yankees.

Here's a surprising fact ... No golfer under the age of 30 has been able to win the U.S. Open tournament anytime in the last 8 years ... The last 8 winners of the Open have been Hale Irwin in 1979; Jack Nicklaus, 1980; David Graham, 1981; Tom Watson, 1982; Larry Nelson, 1983; Fuzzy Zoeller, 1984; Andy North, 1985; and Ray Floyd, 1986 — and all those golfers were over 30 when they won the Open.

What's the toughest stadium in which to hit a home run in major league baseball — and which is the easiest? ... The most homers, by far, in the majors last year were hit in Minnesota's Metrodome ... That was the only stadium where more than 200 homers were hit ... Toughest is St. Louis's stadium where last year only 90 were hit.

Cherry Hill West high school field. Should the Little Tigers upset Moorestown, as they did two years ago to win the state championship, they would play the winner of the other semifinal between second-seeded Cinnaminson and third-seeded Montville. That final would be held Friday at 4 at the Trenton State College.

The Little Tigers face an uphill struggle. Moorestown? "They're ranked No. 1; they're undefeated; they beat Summit, the defending champions, 20-2. What else do you want to know about Summit," asked PHS coach Joyee Jones.

"I would say that we are, definitely, the under, under dog. We have our work cut out for us. It will be a challenge."

Two years ago, again at Cherry Hill, when PHS upset Moorestown to win the state title, Moorestown was not undefeated but was favored to add another championship to its belt. Princeton not only beat Moorestown, they beat them bad.

"I'm sure that's hack in their minds," said Jones.

A Super Game. In defeating Chatham last week, Jones commented, "We played a super game."

Jones credited Cricket Jacobs' defensive play with helping the Little Tigers blunt the visitors attacking game. Jacobs shadowed Chatham's high-scoring Donna Hansen, limiting her to one goal. In a previous meeting between the two teams, Hansen had netted six goals.

Sara Pickens and Silvana Nazzaro each scored twice for the Little Tigers and Anne Teebaugh, Saskia Webber, Jessica Fraker and Kristy Collins added single goals. Goalie Suzanne Maman had six saves for PHS which outshot Chatham, 23-11. PHS led, 5-2, at halftime.

Heat A Factor. Friday at Medford, PHS scored four unanswered goals against Shawnee (13-4-1) to go from a 4-3 halftime lead to a commanding 8-3 lead with 17 minutes left to play in the second half. "All of a sudden it was a new ballgame," recalled Jones, after the home-team Renegades scored the next three goals with three minutes still to play. "I don't know if we let up or if it was because of the heat," continued Jones. "The heat was unbearable. It was like the Sahara Desert. That's how hot it was."

With the momentum shifting toward Shawnee, the Little Tigers resorted to a possession defense and were able to blank the losers the rest of the way. "We didn't play our best but we were able to overcome a lot of things to win," said Jones.

Fraker led the 14-4-1 Little Tigers in scoring with a pair of goals. She received single-goal support from Collins, Webber, Aileen Causing, Jacobs, Kathy Herring and Pickens. Shawnee outshot PHS, 22-21, but Maman had another fine day in goal with 14 saves.

Recruiting Goes Well For Football, Basketball

The Princeton University football and men's basketball teams gave supporters a glimpse of what the future holds this week, as both announced their 1991 recruiting classes.

Head football coach Ron Rogerson, who enters his third season at Old Nassau with a 7-13 won-lost record, signed 40 prospects, while his basketball counterpart, veteran mentor Pete Carril, garnered seven high school standouts. Each coach expressed satisfaction with his program's effort.

"It's a decent year," said Carril. "We'd like to get some help from the recruits (immediately), but they're really more important to the following year, when we lose five guys."

Rogerson's recruits, in accordance with Ivy League regulations, have no choice but to wait a year before contributing to the varsity squad, but the parent club's loss is freshman football coach Craig Cason's gain.

21 Linemen. Cason's frosh team will be especially strong in the trenches, as no fewer than 21 linemen have agreed to attend Princeton next year. Among them are three sizable offensive linemen: Peter Barclay (6'6", 260 lbs.) of Lehigh, Pa., Eric Kortman (6'2", 250) of Bellevue, Wash.,

Football Poll: Tigers 6th

The Ivy League Sports Information Directors have spoken, and for what it's worth, their predictions on the race for the 1987 football title follow.

Sticking with a winner, the SIDs again like Penn to repeat as league champion for an unprecedented sixth consecutive time. The Quakers, who finished last fall with a perfect 7-0 mark, became only the second team in history to win five straight titles, a feat accomplished by Dartmouth from 1969 to 1973. The Red and Blue received four first-place votes and 11 points.

Sticking with a loser, the SIDs had no trouble predicting that Columbia will finish dead last again. The Lions tallied 49 points in the voting.

Perhaps, the most interesting results of the poll concern Princeton and Yale, who finished last season tied for sixth with 2-5 marks. The Elis are expected to improve measurably this fall, giving Penn a battle for the title. They received two first-place votes and finished in a tie with Cornell, which got one, for second place with 19 points. Last year, Yale was also picked to finish second.

Princeton, as usual, gets little or no respect. The Tigers are assigned to another sixth-place finish, with 33 points. Ahead of them in fourth- and fifth-place are Harvard with 21 points and Brown with 31. There was no consensus on the Bruins; they were picked to finish anywhere from first to sixth.

The only other team picked to finish below Princeton is Dartmouth, which received 41 points. Fortunately, the Orange and Black will open its season in Hanover, not Ithaca, in September.

and Mike Staughn (6'2", 260) of Birmingham, Ala.

Two quarterbacks also appear on the grid list, Frank Ille (6'0", 187) of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Joel Sharp (5'9", 175) of Richardson, Tex. Other skill players to watch will be placekicker Chris Lutz (5'11", 205) of Wayne, N.J., and halfback Steve Kujawa (6'1", 185) of Torrance, Cal.

Like the football list, which includes players from 17 states (six each from Texas and Pennsylvania), Carril's ledger reflects broad geographic diversity. Every hoops recruit hails from a different state.

The basketball staff failed in its quest for a big man to replace last year's leading scorer (16.0 ppg) and rebounder (5.3 rpg), graduating center Alan Williams. Fred Herzog, a heavily-recruited 6'8" pivotman from the Jersey shore, was accepted for admission, but decided at the last minute to attend Fordham instead.

The tallest newcomer is 6'7" forward Kit Mueller from Downers Grove, Ill. Two other frontcourters will also be coming to Princeton, Matt Henshon (6'5") from the Loomis-Chaffee School in Connecticut and Todd Frederick (6'6") from Washington, Iowa.

Four Guards Recruited. Four guards round out Carril's '91 class. Most highly-regarded among them is Jerry Doyle, a 6'3" playmaker from Bergenfield, N.J. Other rookie backcourters will be Dave Pavelko (6'1") from Morgantown, W. Va., Troy Hottenstein (6'1") from Sorenton, Pa., and Kelly McDowell (6'1") from Elizabeth City, N.C.

The two coaches have also announced team captains for next season. Rogerson appointed safety Dean Cain, who led the team in interceptions last year and was named to the All-Ivy League team. Two players, guard Dave Orlandini and forward John Thompson, will share the captaincy of Carril's cagers.

Orlandini averaged 12.0 ppg last year and converted an amazing 47 percent of this three-point field goal attempts, while Thompson (son of Georgetown coach John Thompson) racked up a 4.6 ppg average and dished out a team-high 112 assists.

PHS Nine Ends with Win, Disappointment Remains

The Princeton High baseball team ended its season last week as it began — with a win — as freshman Chris Kagay went five innings in a 10-4 victory over Montgomery to earn the decision. But in between there were only seven more victories and the 1987 season will be remembered by coach Ed Beacham as one that did not live up to expectations.

"I am disappointed," said Beacham of the final 9-13 record. "With the talent of a Tim Rumer — he being the number one pitcher in the county and American Legion...winning all-state honors — I thought we would win at least every other game. That would have given us a .500 record."

"When you look back, we lost five games the two weeks he was out. With him in there we would have been in the state tournament. You know, when you get into the states, it often only takes one pitcher. With a little luck in the scheduling he can carry you the whole way. But we'll never know. We didn't do it."

Beacham continued: "As I see it, there were two keys to the season." Number one, he explained, occurred in the seventh game, when the Little Tigers were 4-2 and lost a 12-11 slugfest to Ilun School. It was Rumer's last game on the mound before undergoing a minor operation to relieve a pinched nerve in his shoulder.

"At the time, we thought it might be his last game of the season," recalled Beacham. "We came out of that loss 4-3 instead of 5-2. Had we won against Ilun we still could have lost four games and come out of it. That was a big thing."

Ironically, the second turning point was a victory, an upset win over Shawnee. As it turned out, it was a Pyrrhic victory. "Although it was a great win for us and it was their only loss (Shawnee was ranked No. 1 in the state at the time) we couldn't do a thing for a week and a half after that," said Beacham.

The Little Tigers went into a tailspin. Said Beacham: "We lost to Steinert, 11-0; to West Windsor, 21-3, 15 or 16 to 3 to Hopewell Valley, a team we had beaten earlier in the season. It was just ridiculous."

"I don't know what it was. I don't think those teams were that much better than us. We just played that poorly. These things happen."

Polo Returns to Princeton
For the first time since before World War II, a polo match will be played in Princeton.

As part of this year's reunion festivities, the Princeton University Class of '67 is sponsoring a polo match on Friday at 3 at the Hospital Fete fields off Washington Road. There is no admission.

Two teams, Burnt Mills from Bedminster and Amwell Valley from the Hillsborough Country Club comprised of four amateurs and four full-time professionals, including world-class players from Argentina and Zimbabwe, will oppose each other.

Bryce Thompson, the force behind the newly organized Amwell team, promises spectators will see even better outdoor polo than in the late '30s when Princeton University won the intercollegiate polo championship three years running — the last time it was played here.

A one-goal player himself, Thompson, a '53 college graduate, says he will be the oldest player on the field but insists, "I can hold my own. The horse is a great equalizer."

Polo, incidentally, is enjoying a renaissance in New Jersey. Where once there was one team in the state, Thompson reports there are now five.

Whatever the reason, the string of four lopsided losses was the Little Tigers' Waterloo; it was not able to recover and climb back to .500 before the cutoff date for the state tournament.

Indications that Beacham was looking toward next year came with the presence of four freshmen in the lineup in the final game. In addition to Kagay, who survived a shaky start when he walked the first three batters, Beacham had freshmen Tom Shockley at first base, Danny Paige in right field and Luis Estrada as DH.

Kagay gave up all four of Montgomery's runs, two of them earned, walked six and struck out five. "He didn't do a bad job," said Beacham. "We made sure he went five innings so he would get the win." Jeff Robinson pitched the last two in relief.

Meanwhile, PHS had gotten to the winless (0-21) Cougars early, scoring five runs in the first inning and three more in the second for a commanding 8-0 lead. Robinson was a perfect 3-for-3 at the plate for PHS and catcher Paul Crystal had two hits, one a double, to account for five of Princeton's eight hits. Ross Pratt drove in three Little Tiger runs with his only hit.

Loss Under the Lights.
Beacham had described a 4-3 loss under the lights to McCortin the previous evening as "one of our better games," even though it marked the second straight year the Iron Mikes had defeated PHS in a night game.

"It was just a well-played game, there were no errors," said Beacham, who added he may have left Robinson, the starting pitcher, in an inning too long.

Robinson was touched for two runs in the first and two more in the fourth. Rumer pitched the last two, fanning five of the six batters he faced. "In his last two outings, he's been super," said Beacham.

Iron Mike hurlers Eric Muni and Chris Locane teamed up for a three-hitter, two coming off the bat of shortstop Bill Byrne. The win was McCortin's 12th in 20 starts.

Beacham loses four starters to graduation but they are key losses. They are Rumer, Robinson, Byrne and Crystal. Basically, Beacham noted, he is losing not only his pitching staff but his infield. When not on the mound, Rumer played first base or the outfield, while Robinson and Byrne were fixtures at second and short.

The lone hurler returning is Matt Sanderson, who didn't start a game, so Beacham has a lot of holes to fill in the mound staff. One plus is that collection of good freshmen players who were forced to play a jayvee schedule when lack of numbers forced the elimination of the freshman team this spring. Still, the JV team won only three games.

As a result, it doesn't take a crystal ball to see that Beacham and assistant coach Larry Bender will have to work some magic to prevent the '88 season from slipping away as this one did.

Five from PHS Qualify For Meet of Champions

At the state level the competition in track escalates dramatically. Just how high was illustrated during the two-day NJSIAA Boys and Girls State Track Meet, held last weekend at South Plainfield, when only five performers from Princeton High managed to finish in the top five of their event to qualify for this Wednesday's annual Meet of Champions.

On Friday, when half of the events were held, Princeton High's Mark Pirone qualified by finishing third in the discus with a toss of 154-10. For the girls, Sandra Tignor came in fourth in the 3200 meter in 11:15.8. The event was captured by North Hunterdon's incomparable Jodie Bilotta in 10:44.9. Bilotta also won the 800 and the 1600 on Saturday.

Three other Little Tigers qualified on Saturday. Balfour Merrill uncorked his best effort of the year in the javelin with a toss of 193-6, but that was only good enough for fifth place. The winning distance by Gary Choy of Morris Hills measured 210-10.

Sean Nyhan made it with a fifth place in the 1600 with a clocking of 4:26.2. The winning time was 4:22.6. His twin brother, John, finished tenth with a time of 4:33.

Pat McKellar finished second in his heat in the 110 meter hurdles in 14.6 but was disqualified for a false start. His time of 14.6 would have earned him a tie for fifth in the finals. The winning time of 13.8 was set by Byron Hunt of Lakewood.

Peter Paris, who has jumped 6-8 this season in the high jump, managed only 6-6 at South Plainfield and had to settle for sixth place on the basis of the number of misses. The winning jump measured 6-10½. Princeton High's Peter Sharpless, who set the high jump record of 6-9 in the Group 2 competition in 1981, had his record eclipsed Saturday when Anthony Wright of Asbury Park cleared 6-10.

For the girls, Princeton's Karin Swartz qualified when she ran a 5:10.4 to finish fourth in the 1600. Bilotta's winning time was 5:00.3

One Step Short for PHS In State Tennis Finals

Two out of three isn't bad in the view of Princeton High tennis coach Joe Diefenbach.

The school's coach with the best won-lost career record put last week's 5-0 loss to top-ranked Westfield in the all-states tennis final in Princeton University's Jadwin Gym in perspective when he commented, "It's been a great season. Any time you win a state championship, you've got to be happy."

The Little Tigers ended with a glittering 26-4 record. Last season, Diefenbach reached his 200th victory mark since taking over the reins in 1971.

Annexing the NJSIAA Group 3 state title the week before and winning the Mercer County Tournament, the Little Tigers positioned themselves for the all states tennis crown and a tennis tournament hat trick when they advanced to the final round by shading Moorestown, 3-2, in the semi-finals.

Delayed an hour because of inclement weather, the match with Moorestown (25-4) was stopped in the middle of doubles play as soon as PHS had captured all three singles matches. The win tasted that much sweeter for the Blue and White players because Moorestown had defeated PHS in regular season play earlier in the season.

All three singles matches in the win over Moorestown included a tie-breaker. At No. 1, Bruce Ellis won 7-6 (7-5) and 6-4. Stig Leschly's triumph as second singles over Vince Campisciano was identical to Ellis's score: 7-6 (7-5), 6-4. Freshman Nick Leschly dominated during his first set, 6-2, but then was extended to a tie-breaker in the second set which he won 7-6 (7-2).

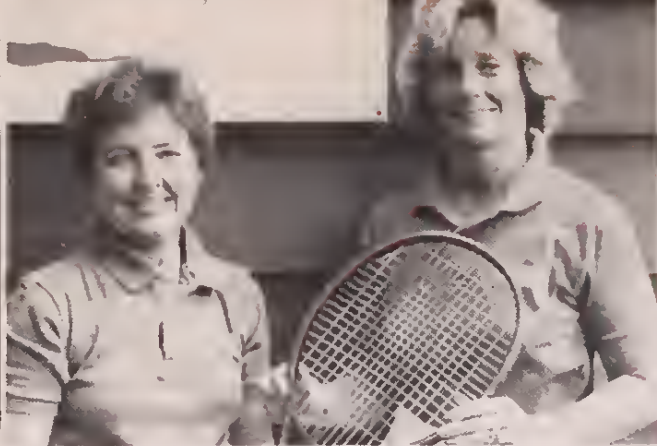

Both Mike Mullen and Dimitri Falk, and Richard Webb and Jamie Womak were leading in doubles play when play was halted.

In the afternoon, with weather forcing the moving of the championship match with once-beaten Westfield (27-1) from the University Courts to inside Jadwin, the Little Tigers failed to make that one last step that would have made them No. 1 throughout the state.

Ellis, the senior, who had a magnificent career, bowed to Westfield's Joe Deer, 6-3, 6-2. When junior Stig Leschly lost a three-setter to Glenn Kiesch, 5-7, 6-1, 5-7, the Little Tigers were down 2-0 and needed a win from freshman Nick Leschly to stay alive. Nick, the last of four Leschly brothers who have excelled in the sport at PHS, responded by winning his first set, 6-0. But his opponent, Jeff Kopelman, started to get a better percentage of his first serves in and got stronger as the match went on, taking the next two sets, 6-4, 6-4, and sealing the outcome for the larger, upstate school.

After Mullen-Falk bowed, 6-3, 6-3, at first doubles, Webb and Womack, who had won all their matches since being paired by Diefenbach nine weeks ago, put up a spirited battle at number two singles. They won the first set, 7-6, taking the tie-breaker, 7-1, but lost the second 5-7 and the third, 3-6.

At the start of the season, Diefenbach, when asked if he were optimistic about his team's outlook for the coming season, had replied, "I think we'll have a good season." To any laurels that may come his way for the team's success this year one more should be added: Understatement of the Year.
